BARON LEAVES SECOND TIME; JOB DIFFICULT

Mussolini's Delegate Refuses to Sit at Conference With Ethiopian

FIVE ON COMMITTEE

World Labor Assails Italy's Aggression

GENEVA, Sept. 6—Baron Pkompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation to the League of Nations council meeting debating the Italo-Abyssinian crisis, abruptly walked out of the session today as Bedjurond Teclé Hawariate, Abyssinian delegate, took his seat.

Carrying out the Italian determination not to sit at any table at which Abyssinia was treated as an equal, Baron Aloisi repeated a similar gesture of yesterday and made it plain negotiations will be difficult.

Present at Start

Baron Aloisi had been present at the start of the session, but walked out as soon as the Abyssinian delegate was invited to take a seat. Italy is a member of the council. Abyssinia is not.

The incident, nonetheless dramatic because of its repetition, came after Italy had made her first capitulation at the current crucial session of the council.

Italy agreed to accept appointment of a committee of five nations including France and Great Britain, to examine the Abyssinian complaint to the league and the Italian rejoinder.

Appointment of the committee to handle the critical problem was decided upon yesterday, but the move early struck a snag as Italy objected to participation by Britain and France, which she termed as "interested parties" in the dispute because of their participation with Italy in the treaty of 1906 regarding Abyssinia. If these two nations take part, so should Italy, was the Italian stand.

Today, however, she reversed her decision, approving appointment of the project Italy made its creation possible, since a unanimous vote of the council is necessary.

GENEVA, Sept. 6—World labor today condemned "the aggressive attitude of Fascist Italy against Abyssinia" and pledged support of sanctions against the aggressor.

The stand was taken in a resolution unanimously adopted by the International Federation of Trade Unions, in session here.

"We assure the League of Nations of effective support of workers... in the application of all sanctions which may be imposed against the aggressor," the resolution set forth.

Vets Plan Armistice Day Event

Parade and Military Ball Planned; Minute Men to Be Approved on Sept. 18.

Howard Hall post No. 134, American Legion, has started to draw plans for a mammoth Armistice day celebration on Nov. 11 with a "red fire" parade to be followed by a military ball. The post in its meeting this week voted for such a celebration.

Committees and more details will be announced later.

The post also voted to join the Monumental association in holding a dance each night during Pumpkin show and named the following committee: L. E. Goeller, chairman, Lawrence Johnson, E. S. Thacher, Paul Johnson, Henry Mason, Mack Parrett, Karl Herrmann, and Reed Shafer.

Legion's Minute Men Progressing

Complete plans for an organization of minute men, who will go into action should a tornado, fire, flood or similar disaster strike Circleville or Pickaway-co., will be completed and submitted for approval to Howard Hall post No. 134, American Legion at its next meeting Sept. 18.

The corps will consist of four units, namely patrol, transportation, medical and supply. Each unit is to be in charge of a unit chief with three aides.

The following have agreed to serve on a citizen's advisory committee: Judge J. W. Adkins, Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Mayor W. B. Cady, Safety Director L. T. Shaner, Police Chief William McCrady, Fire Chief Walter Wines of this city, and Mayor E. E. Fraunfelder of Xenia. Additions will be made from other county communities.

Though organization has not been completed eight uniformed Legionnaires at the request of the Air Day committee will report for police duty at the air show on Sunday.

10 FRENCH AIRMEN DIE IN MOCK WAR

RHEIMS, France, Sept. 6—French military circles today mourned the deaths of 10 French airmen, killed when two planes crashed last yesterday during military air maneuvers near here.

The two huge bombers, carrying five men each, collided in midair in a heavy mist. One of the planes exploded and instantly burst into flames. Diving into an outbuilding of the town hall in the village of St. Jean-audoux. The other plane fell in a field a mile away. Minister of Air Denain, who had been watching the maneuvers, rushed to the scene.

The machines were the new type Block bombers. They had already "bombed" the southern forces fleeing south when the accident occurred, sending four officers, five non-commissioned officers and one mechanic to their deaths.

ROBT. IMMEL HURT

Robert Immel, official of the Federal Land bank of Louisville, Ky., is resting at his home in Yellowbud after being bruised in an automobile wreck Wednesday morning five miles south of Londonderry, Ross-co.

He was enroute to Marietta with J. E. Garrison, also of the land bank, when the automobile skidded on wet pavement, and turned over.

Mr. Immel's head was hurt while Mr. Garrison was cut considerably and was given treatment in a Chillicothe physician's office.

The car, belonging to the land bank, was badly damaged.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE WARNS MOTORISTS

All autoists who fail to stop before entering highways where stop signs are posted are liable to a fine of $25 and costs for the first offense and from $25 to $100 fine for a second offense, according to an announcement from the sheriff's department. The penalties were established under the recent Gallagher law.

All stop signs on highways throughout the county are being repaired and repainted by the highway department.

The department also renewed its warning to motorists to stop for school buses while children are being discharged when approaching the school bus from either the front or rear.

HELEN HAYES BID BON VOYAGE

When Helen Hayes, noted film actress and stage star, departed for Europe from New York, her husband, Charles McArthur, movie producer and writer, bade her a longing farewell, although Mary went along.

Miss Hayes is returning on the next boat. She went to London to consult with Gilbert Miller, stage producer, concerning her next play. Her little daughter Mary went along.

THREE CIVIC CLUBS MEET

Kiwanians Enjoy Successful Meeting at Country Club; Vorys, Campbell Feature

More than 100 Kiwanians from three clubs, Chillicothe, Lancaster and the host club, Circleville, enjoyed a highly successful meeting Thursday evening at the Pickaway Country club.

Claude Kraft, local club member, was in charge of arrangements and did a fine job.

The day started with a golf tournament in the afternoon with golf ball prizes given to Max Fuiks, J. Eric Nutt and John Haney of Chillicothe and Glen Gebb of the local club. Charles Radcliff and Clarence Helvering, playing their first time, also won prizes.

At 7 p. m. a splendid steak dinner was served by the club caterers after which the entertainment started.

Tom Renick, lieutenant governor of the district, acted as toastmaster and introduced George Campbell and his accompanist of Cincinnati. Campbell, rated as the world's greatest song leader, provided just that. Singing, enjoyed by all, continued for quite awhile.

The Lancaster club, with Charles Metcalf manning the camera, showed pictures of its clinic for underprivileged held every Thursday during June with the aid of Lancaster city officials.

John M. Vorys, Columbus, Republican leader and former director of the district, was introduced as the principal speaker. His subject, which was well-handled, was "Nine Old Men and a Piece of Paper" in which he dealt with the Supreme Court and the Constitution.

STRAHM ESTATE GIVEN TO NIECE

The will of the late Agnes M. Strahm, Walt-st., on file in probate court, leaves her estate to a niece, Winifred Wernicke of Chicago, Ill. The estate is valued at $2,850.

ROOSEVELT WRITES BASIC PLANS VIRTUALLY FINISHED

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 6—Declaring that his basic reform program had now been virtually completed, President Roosevelt today promised a "breathing spell" for business.

He predicted that "further substantial and widespread recovery" is on its way and added that unemployment is steadily diminishing.

Admitting that he waved no "magician's wand," Mr. Roosevelt asserted that his policies restored public confidence and paved the way for recovery by saving the banks, the farms, and the homes of the country.

This, in brief, was the substance of a remarkable 3,000-word defense of his administration made by the President in an exchange of letters with Roy W. Howard, newspaper publisher, who wrote the chief executive that recovery was impossible until business was assured of a "breathing spell."

Howard's letter, and the President's lengthy reply, were made public today at the temporary White House. The publisher frankly told the President that many patriotic businessmen were fearful of the administration program and looked upon the recent tax bill as a "revenge on business."

In reply Mr. Roosevelt defended the tax measure, asserting that it was based "on a broad and just basis."

22 PROJECTS APPROVED BY WORKS CHIEF

Many Thousands of Dollars Included in List Mailed by Henninger

COURT STREET ONE

Addition to City Building Also Included

A number of projects for Circleville and Pickaway-co. which will give work for many months to come to the "employable" unemployed were submitted today by L. L. Henninger of Chillicothe, director of the Works Projects administration for district No. 11, to the Columbus office. After they are studied in Columbus, and given approval there, they will be forwarded to Washington.

Many thousands of dollars worth of labor would be provided by the projects with the resultant improvement to the city and county of even greater value.

Court-st First

Heading the list of projects forwarded to the central offices is that for reconstruction of Court-st. by removal of the Scoto Traction lines. The estimated cost of this project is $115,000.

The other projects are:

Circleville

Tennis court, ball diamond and recreation grounds in a city park, $10,000.

City-wide walk widening, $46,000.

Repair of the city building and an addition, $30,800.

Painting and repairing the courthouse, $40,000.

Painting and repairing the county home, $13,000.

Williamsport

Walk project, $5,700.

Storm sewer, $5,300.

Pickaway-co

School repairs in New Holland, Williamsport, Jackson-twp., Monroe-twp., and Muhlenberg-twp., $42,600.

Playground construction in Scioto-twp., Jackson-twp., and Walnut-twp., $9,500.

Two Pickaway-co. bridges, one $29,000, the other $34,000.

Four county roads in addition to a secondary project, $56,000.

Work for Women

A number of unnamed projects for employable women were also forwarded with no estimate given of their value.

Mr. Henninger could not predict when word would be received concerning approval of the projects.

FRANK HENDERSON DIES IN CHICAGO

Frank S. Henderson, aged 42, son of the late John H. Henderson and Mrs. Ella Henderson, dropped dead in the Palmer House, Chicago, early Friday. Death was caused by an organic heart.

Mr. Henderson was a hosiery salesman and broker with offices in New York. He was traveling at the time of his sudden demise.

The body will be returned to Columbus with funeral services probably being held there. The W. H. Albaugh Co. has been advised of the death.

Mr. Henderson was a native of Circleville.

He leaves his mother, who resides at 23 Everett-rd., Columbus, and two sisters, Mrs. Howard Cook of the Columbus address and Mrs. C. D. Christie, wife of the noted Cleveland physician.

GUARDS ORDERED INTO HARLAN-CO

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 6—Gov. Ruby Laffoon today ordered national guardsmen into Harlan-co.

Their entry was timed for shortly before the funeral services early this afternoon for Prosecutor Elmon Middleton, county attorney killed by the explosion of a bomb attached to the started of his car.

Fear of violence prompted the action, the governor stressed in the order, which directed the guardsmen of twenty other communities throughout the state to move into the area.

AGED AMANDA MAN, ILL 3 WEEKS, DIES

An illness of three weeks proved fatal to J. E. Rieman, 87, at his home near Amanda Thursday night.

Mr. Rieman, a former painter, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Rieman, a daughter, Mrs. Ella Abbott of Amanda, six grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church at Amanda at 2:30 p. m. Saturday with burial following in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Clearport.

2 Millions Sent to Help Florida

Rescuers Find More Bodies; Williams to Help Sholtz With Relief

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6—The first relief workers to land on Vaca Key and Grassy key today found twelve persons dead, according to messages received here.

Bodies of six hurricane victims were found at Marathon on Vaca key, and six others were found on Grassy key.

The score of residents residing on Long key, once the fishing camp of former President Hoover, escaped death, although the key was practically demolished. Four of the residents on the key were children.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—Speeding its efforts to rehabilitate the damaged Florida storm area, the federal government today transmitted $200,000 to Gov. Dave Sholtz, of the stricken state.

A grant from emergency relief funds of this amount was sent to the governor by Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins this morning. Hopkins indicated the government would "go the limit" in bringing succor to the devastated area.

Federal rehabilitation activities will be mobilized under Assistant Relief Administrator Aubrey Williams who was ordered to the storm area by Hopkins. The federal funds will be administered by the governor and Williams.

Allow More Funds

In addition, the veterans bureau which by law is allowed to spend $100 to transport each body of each veteran who met death in the hurricane while encamped on the keys, will be given additional funds if necessary.

The WPA here also said it would give right of way to construction projects that might be contemplated in the rehabilitation of the damaged area. The CCC offered to enroll immediately needy veterans who survived the hurricane.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6—A public mass funeral for the war veterans who lost their lives Monday night when a disastrous hurricane swept across the Florida keys will be held here at a date yet to be determined, and burial will take place in a national cemetery not yet decided upon, it was announced here today.

Ranking officials of the army, navy, marine corps and the coast guard will attend, it was said.

271 Deaths Listed

Many of the bodies of the veterans have already been received here, and others were expected today. It is not yet known how many veterans lost their lives in the storm, but the Red Cross issued an official estimate this morning of 271 deaths.

Miami officials today issued an order that no more bodies were to be brought here until they were encased in steel caskets. The order was a health precaution, taken because of the condition of many of the bodies.

Hunt Known Red

Police were hunting Lawrence Emery, described as a "known Red," from New York, said to have rented the bombed offices last Aug. 1.

3 MAY DIE FROM "SUICIDE" PLOT

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6—August Wolf, 80, was dead today and three innocent victims of his suicide plot are seriously injured.

Wolf's wife, his son Eddie, 34, and Charles Meyers, 67, found him lying on the floor of a room in the home, with the doors and windows closed and gas jets open.

The son told officials he switched on an electric light and that a spark from the switch ignited the gas.

"There was a terrific explosion—that is all I remember," he said.

The body of the elder Wolf was dug from the ruins of the home with a steam shovel. Only one wall of the home was left standing.

The other three were rushed to hospitals critically injured.

NEED TEXT BOOKS AT LONDON PRISON

LONDON, Sept. 6—The need for textbooks for inmates of the London prison farm school was sounded today by Chaplain C. E. Shields, director of the school.

Arithmetic, history, geography, and English texts are among the books needed, Rev. Shields said.

Board Provides Third Special Education Room for First Four Grades

TEACHERS ASSIGNED

Shortage of Room Forces 8th Grade Division

A third Special Education room will be established in the Circleville school system this year, according to an announcement Friday by the board of education.

The new room will be located in the Walnut-st. school and will be in charge of Miss Rebecca Gordon. Pupils in the first four grades will be taken care of in this room.

Others in the city, are those at the Corwin building in charge of Miss Marie Hamilton and Mrs. Channing Vlerebone.

Miss Rooney Added

The only other change in appointments in the grades will be at the High-st. school where Miss

STUDENTS NOTICE

All pupils who last June were promoted to the eighth grade were requested today by Supt. Fischer to report in the high school auditorium at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

After the assembly, plans will be worked out to distribute the eighth grade pupils between the high school building and the Corwin building.

High school pupils are requested to report to the same rooms where they were seated last year.

Margaret Rooney Will Have Third Grade Instead of Miss Mary Seal who resigned to go to Monroe-twp.

Mrs. Sterling Lamb has been named to continue substituting during the prolonged illness of Miss Ruth Stout of the seventh grade at Corwin.

New placements at the high school include Elmer E. Reger, principal; Robert Jewett, social science teacher, and Jack Landrum, coach.

Mrs. Ray W. Davis' position as music supervisor of all grades will be filled by Miss Marjorie Priest of Columbus.

Shortage of Rooms

A drastic problem to be faced is the room shortage, with the eighth grade most seriously affected. There are this year 150 pupils in this grade. It will not be possible to seat this large number in the high school building where only 80 seniors graduated last June to make way for them.

It will be necessary this year for the first time to split the eighth grade. A part of it will remain in the Corwin building in charge of Miss Florence Hoffman.

School will open Monday at 8:30 a. m. A meeting of all teachers of the high school building has been called by Principal Reger for that morning at 7:30, and Monday at 2 p. m. Supt. Fischer is meeting with all teachers of the city in Miss Brown's room.

A general assembly of grades eight to 12 will be held by Mr. Fischer at 5:30 a. m. Monday. At this time the new principal and staff members will be introduced to the pupils.

Charles Owens, proprietor of the New American Coffee shop, sustained lacerations on his left arm Thursday evening when his auto and one driven by Ray Stevens, Circleville R. F. D., collided in an alley intersection at the rear of Taylor's garage.

Owens was driving west in his Essex sedan and Stevens was driving a Ford coupe south. Owens' car was wedged against the garage building and he had to crawl out a rear window. Both sides of the Essex were caved in and the front of the Ford coupe was damaged.

Owens' injuries were treated by Dr. E. S. Shane. The cars were taken into Taylor's garage for repairs.

RUSH OF DOG TAG VIOLATORS BEGINS

Business was booming in the office of H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, Friday, as county residents accused of dog tag violations appeared for hearings. About 80 affidavits have been issued.

Three cases were heard up to noon and the defendants made arrangements to pay fines of $10 and costs, with $5 of the fine suspended. The cases heard were those against C. M. Faulder and Arthur Barthelmas, Washington-twp., and Ray Lockard, Circleville-twp.

A number of persons ordered to appear Friday morning made arrangements for hearings at later dates.

DR. G. S. CORNE'S COUSIN IS CALLED

Dr. J. C. Cussins, cousin of Dr. G. S. Corne, died suddenly Friday morning at his home in Decatur, Ill.

Dr. and Mrs. Corne had made plans to leave next week for a visit with Dr. Cussins. They will attend the funeral on Saturday.

ROOSEVELT WRITES BASIC PLANS VIRTUALLY FINISHED

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Declaring that his basic reform program had now been virtually completed, President Roosevelt today promised a "breathing spell" for business.

He predicted that "further substantial and widespread recovery" is on its way and added that unemployment is steadily diminishing.

Admitting that he waved no "magician's wand," Mr. Roosevelt asserted that his policies restored public confidence and paved the way for recovery by saving the banks, the farms, and the homes of the country.

This, in brief, was the substance of a remarkable 3,000-word defense of his administration made by the President in an exchange of letters with Roy W. Howard, newspaper publisher, who wrote the chief executive that real recovery was impossible until business was assured of a "breathing spell."

22 PROJECTS APPROVED BY WORKS CHIEF

Many Thousands of Dollars Included in List Mailed by Henninger

COURT STREET ONE

Addition to City Building Also Included

A number of projects for Circleville and Pickaway-co which will give work for many months to come to the "employable" unemployed were submitted today by L. L. Henninger of Chillicothe, director of the Works Projects administration for district No. 11, to the Columbus office. After they are studied in Columbus, and given approval there, they will be forwarded to Washington.

Many thousands of dollars worth of labor would be provided by the projects with the resultant improvement to the city and county of even greater value.

Court-st First

Heading the list of projects forwarded to the central offices is that for reconstruction of Court-st by removal of the Scioto Traction lines. The estimated cost of this project is $116,000.

The other projects are:

Circleville

Tennis court, ball diamond and recreation grounds in a city park, $19,000.

City-wide walk widening, $46,000.

Repair of the city building and an addition, $30,800.

Painting and repairing the courthouse, $40,000.

Painting and repairing the county home, $13,000.

Williamsport

Walk project, $5,700.

Storm sewer, $5,300.

Pickaway-co

School repairs in New Holland, Williamsport, Jackson-twp., Monroe-twp., and Muhlenberg-twp., $42,000.

Playground construction in Scioto-twp., Jackson-twp., and Walnut-twp., $9,500.

Two Pickaway-co bridges, one $29,000, the other $34,000.

Four county roads in addition to a secondary project, $56,000.

Work for Women

A number of unnamed projects for employable women were also forwarded with no estimate given of their value.

Mr. Henninger could not predict when word would be received concerning approval of the projects.

FRANK HENDERSON DIES IN CHICAGO

Frank S. Henderson, aged 42, son of the late John H. Henderson and Mrs. Ella Henderson, dropped dead in the Palmer House, Chicago, early Friday. Death was caused by an organic heart.

Mr. Henderson was a hosiery salesman and broker with offices in New York. He was traveling at the time of his sudden demise.

The body will be returned to Columbus with funeral services probably being held there. The W. H. Albaugh Co. has been advised of the death.

Mr. Henderson was a native of Circleville.

He leaves his mother, who resides at 23 Brevort-rd., Columbus, and two sisters, Mrs. Howard Cook of the Columbus address and Mrs. C. D. Christie, wife of the noted Cleveland physician.

2 Millions Sent to Help Florida

Rescuers Find More Bodies; Williams to Help Sholtz With Relief

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—The first relief workers to land on Vaca key and Grassy key today found twelve persons dead, according to messages received here.

Bodies of six hurricane victims were found at Marathon on Vaca key, and six others were found on Grassy key.

The score of residents residing on Long key, once the fishing camp of former President Hoover, escaped death, although the key was practically demolished. Four of the residents on the key were children.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Speeding its efforts to rehabilitate the damaged Florida storm area, the federal government today transmitted $200,000 to Gov. Dave Sholtz, of the stricken state.

A grant from emergency relief funds of this amount was sent to the governor by Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins this morning. Hopkins indicated the government would "go the limit" in bringing succor to the devastated area.

Federal rehabilitation activities will be mobilized under Assistant Relief Administrator Aubrey Williams who was ordered to the storm area by Hopkins. The federal funds will be administered by the governor and Williams.

Allow More Funds

In addition, the veterans bureau which by law is allowed to spend $100 to transport each body of each veteran who met death in the hurricane while camped on the keys, will be given additional funds if necessary.

The WPA heretofore also said it would give right of way to construction projects that might be contemplated in the rehabilitation of the damaged area. The CCC offered to enroll immediately needy veterans who survived the hurricane.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6.—A public mass funeral for the war veterans who lost their lives Monday night when a disastrous hurricane swept across the Florida keys will be held here at a date yet to be determined, and burial will take place in a National cemetery not yet decided upon, it was announced here today.

Ranking officials of the army, navy, marine corps and the coast guard will attend, it was said.

271 Deaths Listed

Many of the bodies of the veterans have already been received here, and others were expected today. It is not yet known how many veterans lost their lives in the storm, but the Red Cross issued an official estimate this morning of 271 deaths.

Miami officials today issued an order that no more bodies were to be brought here until they are encased in steel caskets. The order was a health precaution, taken because of the condition of many of the bodies.

GUARDS ORDERED INTO HARLAN-CO

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 6.—Gov. Ruby Laffoon today ordered national guardsmen into Harlan-co.

Their entry was timed for shortly before the funeral services early this afternoon for Prosecutor Elmon Middleton, county attorney killed by the explosion of a bomb attached to the started of his car.

Fear of violence prompted the action, the governor stressed in the order, which directed the guardsmen of twenty other communities throughout the state to move into the area.

AGED AMANDA MAN, ILL 3 WEEKS, DIES

An illness of three weeks proved fatal to J. E. Rieman, 87, at his home near Amanda Thursday night.

Mr. Rieman, a former painter, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Rieman, a daughter, Mrs. Ella Abbott of Amanda, six grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the Presbyterian church at Amanda at 2:30 p. m. Saturday with burial following in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Clearport.

SCHOOL BOARDS NOT TO COLLECT TAXES ON SALE OF BOOKS

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—School boards are not required to collect the sales tax on sales of books to pupils at cost, Attorney General John W. Bricker ruled today in an opinion to the state tax commission.

Bricker held that this exemption also applies to a "third person, when engaged at no salary on a no-profit basis," to sell school books.

He said the act does not consider school boards as being engaged in business within the meaning of the sales tax law when dealing in school books without profit.

DETROIT 'RED' PLOT LEARNED

Office of Communistic Group Bombed; "Red Sunday" Plan is Disclosed.

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—Bombing of a Communistic headquarters early today revealed to police evidence of plots to establish "Red Sundays" in Detroit and to spread agitation in an automobile factory and among meat strikers.

Communistic literature discovered along with elaborate filing cases and a mimeograph machine disclosed such statements:

"The meat strike showed the masses will respond to our agitation if properly approached."

"We must establish regular Red Sundays by canvassing from house to house . . . institute a wrapper campaign . . . establish a Red building near the Chrysler plant . . . adopt the three months plan in a meat strike . . . double our membership."

Hunt Known Red

Police were hunting Lawrence Emery, described as a "known Red," from New York, said to have rented the bombed offices last Aug. 1.

3 MAY DIE FROM "SUICIDE" PLOT

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6.—August Wolf, 80, was dead today and three innocent victims of his suicide plot are seriously injured.

Wolf's wife, his son Eddie, 34, and Charles Meyers, 67, found lying on the floor of a room in the home, with the doors and windows closed and gas jets open.

The son told officials he switched on an electric light and that a spark from the switch ignited the gas.

"There was a terrific explosion—that is all I remember," he said.

The body of the elder Wolf was dug from the ruins of the home with a steam shovel. Only one wall of the home was left standing.

The other three were rushed to hospitals critically injured.

NEED TEXT BOOKS AT LONDON PRISON

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The need for textbooks for inmates of the London prison farm school was sounded today by Chaplain C. E. Shields, director of the school.

Arithmetic, history, geography, and English texts are among the books needed, Rev. Shields said.

LEGION TO PROFIT BY ABOUT $100 SUM

Profit from the fish fry and Labor Day celebration in Community park in Ashville will add about $150 to the American Legion's community fund, according to an announcement Friday by Christian Schwarz, cashier of the event.

Miss Peters Named Piqua School Nurse

Miss Doris Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Peters, N. Court-st. and graduate of White Cross hospital, Columbus, has accepted a position as school nurse for the city schools of Piqua, O.

Miss Peters left Friday morning to take up her duties.

SUPT. FISCHER REPORTS CITY SCHOOL PLANS

Board Provides Third Special Education Room for First Four Grades

TEACHERS ASSIGNED

Shortage of Room Forces 8th Grade Division

A third Special Education room will be established in the Circleville school system this year, according to an announcement Friday by the board of education.

The new room will be located in the Walnut-st. school and will be in charge of Miss Rebecca Gordon. Pupils in the first four grades will be taken care of in this room.

Others in the city, are those at the Corwin building in charge of Miss Marie Hamilton and Mrs. Channing Vlerebome.

Miss Rooney Added

The only other change in appointments in the grades will be at the High-st. school where Miss

STUDENTS NOTICE

All pupils who last June were promoted to the eighth grade were requested today by Supt. Fischer to report in the high school auditorium at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

After the assembly, plans will be worked out to distribute the eighth grade pupils between the high school building and the Corwin building.

High school pupils are requested to report to the same rooms where they were seated last year.

Margaret Rooney will have the third grade instead of Miss Mary Seal who resigned to go to Monroe-twp.

Mrs. Sterling Lamb has been named to continue substituting during the prolonged illness of Miss Ruth Stout of the seventh grade at Corwin.

New placements at the high school include Elmer E. Reger, principal; Robert Jewett, social science teacher, and Jack Landrum, coach.

Mrs. Ray W. Davis' position as music supervisor of all grades will be filled by Miss Marjorie Priest of Columbus.

Shortage of Rooms

A drastic problem to be faced is the room shortage, with the eighth grade most seriously affected. There are this year 150 pupils in this grade. It will not be possible to seat this large number in the high school building where only 80 seniors graduated last June to make way for them.

It will be necessary this year for the first time to split the eighth grade. A part of it will remain in the Corwin building in charge of Miss Florence Hoffman.

School will open Monday at 8:30 a. m. A meeting of all teachers of the high school building has been called by Principal Reger for that morning at 7:30, and Monday at 2 p. m. Supt. Fischer is meeting with all teachers of the city in Miss Brown's room.

A general assembly of grades eight to 12 will be held by Mr. Fischer at 8:30 a. m. Monday. At this time the new principal and staff members will be introduced to the pupils.

STRAW BOARD FIRE LOSS SET AT $750

The fire in the pit under No. 3 drying machine at the Container Corp., Thursday morning, caused damage estimated at $750, according to an announcement from officials Friday.

The machine was put in operation Thursday night. In addition to the machine damage a section of the roof was burned.

$100 DAMAGE IN HAY TRUCK FIRE

Firemen were called to N. Court-st. near the Elks home at 4 a. m. Friday when an overheated wheel bearing on a truck ignited hot grease and threatened to destroy a load of baled hay.

The truck driver, E. W. Bechtie of Richmond, estimated the damage to the truck at $100. The bearings and one large tire were destroyed in the blaze.

Papyrus Club Elects

Mrs. Milton Kellstadt

Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, N. Court-st., is the new president of the Papyrus Club, succeeding Mrs. Howard Jones, of Park-pl. Her election took place Thursday afternoon when members of the club gathered at the home of Mrs. Ward W. Robinson, S. Pickaway-st., for the opening of another year's work.

Mrs. Robinson was chosen secretary.

Plans and criticisms of the year's work were discussed and the pleasant afternoon was brought to a close when the hostess served tempting refreshments. Mrs. Brunelle Parrett Downing, who will leave shortly to take up her duties as a teacher in the Springfield schools, was an honor guest at the meeting.

40 Attend Morris

Chapel Group Meet

Forty members and visitors attended the meeting of the Morris Chapel Ladies Aid society held at the home of Mrs. Joe Anderson in Pickaway-twp. Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Helen Dawson was assisting hostess.

The program for the afternoon was a splendid one, including readings by Mrs. Evelyn England, Mrs. Freda Kerns, Mrs. Pauline Schooley, Mrs. Eva Musselman, and Miss Dorothy Kerns, and a duet by Mrs. Roy England and Miss Kerns.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting of the group will be held on October 3 at the home of Mrs. Albert Musselman, the society president, in Pickaway-twp, with Mrs. Eva Musselman as assisting hostess.

MRS. WARREN GUEST

OF BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Roscoe Warren was a guest when Mrs. I. W. Kinsey assembled three tables of bridge at her home on E. Main-st. Thursday night.

High score prizes went to Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Mildred Karshner.

Tempting refreshments were served by the hostess.

Pythian Sisters

Plan Wiener Roast

The Pythian Sisters are planning a wiener roast at Dewey Park for next Thursday night.

This was decided at a meeting which 30 members attended in the lodge rooms Thursday evening. Mrs. Fred Brown, S. Court-st., president, was in charge of the business meeting.

During a pleasant social hour, card playing was enjoyed and the delightful evening was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on September 19.

Bridge Club Enjoys Session Thursday

Mrs. Carl Beery and Mrs. Mark Howell received high score prizes when Mrs. Robert Bower, E. Union-st., entertained her bridge club of two tables at her home Thursday night.

Mrs. Nelson Sweyer and Miss Frances Jones were guests, the latter receiving the guest prize.

Late in the evening, the hostess served refreshments. In two weeks the club will meet at the home of Mrs. George Green, S. Court-st.

MRS. BACH IS CLUB HOSTESS

Mrs. Edwin Bach, S. Court-st., was hostess to her bridge club of two tables and a guest, Mrs. Frank Kline, Jr., at her home Thursday night.

At the conclusion of play, Mrs. James Stout and Mrs. M. S. Rinehart were awarded prizes. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

FORMER SCHOOL FRIENDS GATHER AT GRIMES HOME

A happy occasion was the picnic party Thursday noon of former school friends held at the home of Misses Anna and Estella Grimes, E. Mound-st.

Twelve guests from New Holland, Washington C. H., Plain City, Columbus, and this city were in attendance. Mrs. Herbert Martin, of Iowa City, Ia., and Mrs. Channing Vlerehome, E. Main-st., were among the guests.

"Church Day" Successful Event of Thursday

Another successful "Church Day" was held at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday when three women's groups gathered for their annual meetings.

Luncheon was served at 11:30 a. m. by the officers of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Women's Home Missionary group had the first meeting of the day in the church parlors at 10 a. m. Mrs. Frank Barnhill, president, presided at the business meeting and later introduced Mrs. C. C. Watts who had charge of the program.

Mrs. Watts reviewed the first chapter of the group's new study book, "Toward A Christian America." The first chapter dealt with "Home Missions and the Christian Ideal for America."

Mrs. Leon Van Vliet rendered two piano solos. At the Ladies' Aid meeting held at 1 and the Foreign Missionary group held at 2, officers were re-elected. Miss Mattie Gearhart was named president of the former group. Other officers elected were: Mrs. R. R. Bales, first vice-president; Mrs. Harold Grant, second vice-president; Mrs. M. E. Noggle, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Stoffer, treasurer.

Mrs. Charles Gearhardt was re-elected president of the foreign missionary group. Others named to assist her include: Mrs. George Marion, first vice-president; Mrs. Fred Nicholas, second vice-president; Mrs. W. C. Baum, third vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Hilyard, recording secretary; Miss Anna Grimes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. G. Rader, treasurer; Mrs. H. D. Jackson, assistant treasurer; Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, pianist; Mrs. S. B. Chambers, assistant pianist; Mrs. Fannie Kirkpatrick, stewardship secretary; Mrs. James W. Denman, extension secretary; Mrs. M. E. Noggle, chorister, and Mrs. Grant, councilor for standard bearers.

Mrs. Hunsicker was in charge of the program for the meeting of the latter group. It included a reading by Mrs. Hunsicker, "To Read Or Not to Read," a hymn, "Christ for the World," a reading, "Teaching Through the Eye (cate)" by Mrs. Baum, and a talk, "Is It Worth While?" by Mrs. Noggle. Mrs. James Denman gave an encouraging report on the progress made by her group in the society.

Mrs. Long Directs Interesting Program

Mrs. Ralph Long, E. Franklin-st., was in charge of an inspiring program presented before the members of the women's missionary society of the United Brethren church in the community house Thursday afternoon.

Plans were discussed for coming fall meetings and "Woman's Day" to be observed at the church on October 27 when Mrs. J. Hal Smith, of Dayton, a returned missionary from Africa, will be the principal speaker.

A contrast between the lives of Methuselah, oldest character in the Bible and Jesus Christ, given by Mrs. Long, was an interesting feature of the program. Readings, "As Jesus Gives," and "Money, a Sacred Trust," were given by Miss Blanche Ryan and Mrs. James Trimmer, respectively.

The program was closed by an illustrated talk by Mrs. Long on "How Far Is Your Reach" in which the speaker attempted to show how people in foreign lands could be aided by contributions and kind deeds from American folk.

SWEET AT "MIKE"

Bill Sweet, ace air race and air show announcer and master of ceremonies, will be at the "mike" of the public address system that is to be erected at the airport for the annual Circleville aviation classic, it has been announced by Lieut. Joe Mackey, head of the Air Aces who are presenting the aerial acts for the Circleville chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, sponsors of the air show Sunday.

Sweet is a show all in his own with his genial and rapid-fire chatter about the fliers as they cut through the sky at a 200 mile an hour clip in their special built Waco acrobatic ships. Sweet has announced over 250 air show programs. He has been announcing aerial performances for the past five years, and has announced the National Air Races at Cleveland.

Another phase to the Circleville spectacle will be passenger sight-seeing flights in the huge Stinson tri-motored luxury skyliner, flown by W. Myron Hightower, pioneer transport plane pilot. Pilot Hightower has been flying these giants of the airways for the past six years and has flown more than a half-million miles transporting more than 250,000 people in that period, throughout the United States.

So, for a thrill Sunday, Sept. 8, it's the annual Circleville Air Day, greater speed, thrills and excitement.

Papyrus Club Elects Mrs. Milton Kellstadt

Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, N. Court-st., is the new president of the Papyrus Club, succeeding Mrs. Howard Jones, of Park-pl.

Her election took place Thursday afternoon when members of the club gathered at the home of Mrs. Ward W. Robinson, S. Pickaway-st., for the opening of another year's work.

Mrs. Robinson was chosen secretary.

Plans and criticisms of the year's work were discussed and the pleasant afternoon was brought to a close when the hostess served tempting refreshments.

Mrs. Brunelle Parrett Downing, who will leave shortly to take up her duties as a teacher in the Springfield schools, was an honor guest at the meeting.

40 Attend Morris Chapel Group Meet

Forty members and visitors attended the meeting of the Morris Chapel Ladies Aid society held at the home of Mrs. Joe Anderson in Pickaway-twp. Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Helen Dawson was assisting hostess.

The program for the afternoon was a splendid one, including readings by Mrs. Evelyn England, Mrs. Freda Kerns, Mrs. Pauline Schooley, Mrs. Eva Musselman, and Miss Dorothy Kerns, and a duet by Mrs. Roy England and Miss Kerns.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting of the group will be held on October 3 at the home of Mrs. Albert Musselman, the society president, in Pickaway-twp., with Mrs. Eva Musselman as assisting hostess.

MRS. WARREN GUEST OF BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. Roscoe Warren was a guest when Mrs. I. W. Kinsey assembled three tables of bridge at her home on E. Main-st. Thursday night.

High score prizes went to Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Mildred Karshner.

Tempting refreshments were served by the hostess.

Pythian Sisters Plan Wiener Roast

The Pythian Sisters are planning a wiener roast at Dewey Park for next Thursday night.

This was decided at a meeting which 30 members attended in the lodge rooms Thursday evening. Mrs. Fred Brown, S. Court-st., president, was in charge of the business meeting.

During a pleasant social hour, card playing was enjoyed and the delightful evening was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on September 19.

Bridge Club Enjoys Session Thursday

Mrs. Carl Beery and Mrs. Mark Howell received high score prizes when Mrs. Robert Bower, E. Union-st., entertained her bridge club of two tables at her home Thursday night.

Mrs. Nelson Sweyer and Miss Frances Jones were guests, the latter receiving the guest prize.

Late in the evening, the hostess served refreshments.

In two weeks the club will meet at the home of Mrs. George Green, S. Court-st.

MRS. BACH IS CLUB HOSTESS

Mrs. Edwin Bach, S. Court-st., was hostess to her bridge club of two tables and a guest, Mrs. Frank Kilne, Jr., at her home Thursday night.

At the conclusion of play, Mrs. James Stout and Mrs. M. S. Rinehart were awarded prizes. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

FORMER SCHOOL FRIENDS GATHER AT GRIMES HOME

A happy occasion was the picnic party Thursday noon of former school friends held at the home of Misses Anna and Estella Grimes, E. Mount-st.

Twelve guests from New Holland, Washington C. H., Plain City, Columbus, and this city were in attendance. Mrs. Herbert Martin, of Iowa City, Ia., and Mrs. Channing Vlercome, E. Main-st., were among the guests.

"Church Day" Successful Event of Thursday

Another successful "Church Day" was held at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday when three women's groups gathered for their annual meetings.

Luncheon was served at 11:30 a. m. by the officers of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Women's Home Missionary group had the first meeting of the day in the church parlors at 10 a. m. Mrs. Frank Barnhill, president, presided at the business meeting and later introduced Mrs. C. C. Watts who had charge of the program.

Mrs. Watts reviewed the first chapter of the group's new study book, "Toward A Christian America." The first chapter dealt with "Home Missions and the Christian Ideal for America."

Mrs. Leon Van Vliet rendered two piano solos.

At the Ladies' Aid meeting held at 1 and the Foreign Missionary meet held at 2, officers were re-elected. Miss Mattie Gearhart was named president of the former group. Other officers elected were: Mrs. R. R. Bales, first vice-president; Mrs. Harold Grant, second vice-president; Mrs. M. E. Noggle, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Stoffer, treasurer.

Mrs. Charles Gearhardt was re-elected president of the foreign missionary group. Others named to assist her include: Mrs. George Marion, first vice-president; Mrs. Fred Nicholas, second vice-president; Mrs. W. C. Baum, third vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Hilyard, recording secretary; Miss Anna Grimes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. G. Rader, treasurer; Mrs. H. D. Jackson, assistant treasurer; Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, pianist; Mrs. S. B. Chambers, assistant pianist; Mrs. Fannie Kirkpatrick, stewardship secretary; Mrs. James W. Denman, extension secretary; Mrs. M. E. Noggle, chorister, and Mrs. Grant, councilor for standard bearers.

Mrs. Hunsicker was in charge of the program for the meeting of the latter group. It included a reading by Mrs. Hunsicker, "To Read Or Not to Read," a hymn, "Christ for the World," a reading, "Teaching Through the Eye Gate," by Mrs. Baum, and a talk, "Is It Worth While?" by Mrs. Noggle.

Mrs. James Denman gave an encouraging report on the progress made by her group in the society.

Mrs. Long Directs Interesting Program

Mrs. Ralph Long, E. Franklin-st., was in charge of an inspiring program presented before the members of the women's missionary society of the United Brethren church in the community house Thursday afternoon.

Plans were discussed for coming fall meetings and "Woman's Day" to be observed at the church on October 27 when Mrs. J. Hal Smith, of Dayton, a returned missionary from Africa, will be the principal speaker.

A contrast between the lives of Methuselah, oldest character in the Bible and Jesus Christ, given by Mrs. Long, was an interesting feature of the program. Readings, "As Jesus Gives," and "Money, a Sacred Trust," were given by Miss Blanche Ryan and Mrs. James Trimmer, respectively.

The program was closed by an illustrated talk by Mrs. Long on "How Far Is Your Reach" in which the speaker attempted to show how people in foreign lands could be aided by contributions and kind deeds from American folk.

SWEET AT "MIKE"

Bill Sweet, ace air race and air show announcer and master of ceremonies, will be at the "mike" of the public address system that is to be erected at the airport for the annual Circleville aviation classic, it has been announced by Lieut. Joe Mackey, head of the Air Aces who are presenting the aerial acts for the Circleville chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, sponsors of the air show Sunday.

Sweet is a show all in his own with his genial and rapid-fire chatter about the fliers as they cut through the sky at a 200 mile an hour clip in their special built Waco acrobatic ships. Sweet has announced over 250 air show programs. He has been announcing aerial performances for the past five years, and has announced the National Air Races at Cleveland.

Another phase to the Circleville spectacle will be passenger sight-seeing flights in the huge Stinson tri-motored luxury skyliner, flown by W. Myron Hightower, pioneer transport plane pilot. Pilot Hightower has been flying these giants of the airways for the past six years and has flown more than a half-million miles transporting more than 250,000 people in that period, throughout the United States.

So, for a thrill Sunday, Sept. 8, it's the annual Circleville Air Day, greater speed, thrills and excitement.

Rev. Herman D. Fudge and G. D. Griffith left Tuesday to attend the synod of the Lutheran church held at Marion.

Cop Never Made Pinch

BOSTON.—All cops aren't tough. Joseph S. Snyder just vacated the toughest traffic spot in the city after 14 years duty with the record of never having made a "pinch." In that time it was estimated that 50,000,000 "dumb" and otherwise motorists had passed his post. He believed it much better to talk to them like a "Dutch uncle."

Mrs. Geo. O. Thurn Gives Valuable Recipes to Add to Your Culinary Files

Try These Delicious Dishes In This Week's Menus; Healthful, Flavorful, Unusual and Appetizing

Dear Friends in Circleville:

"So many good recipes are available these days with the wonderful products in our grocery stores and markets. I am always amazed when a woman says to me: 'What shall I have for a guest luncheon?' I don't seem to have any ideas. 'What I want to say each time this happens is: 'Go to the grocery store and just look about at the wealth of delicious suggestions staring at you from the shelves. Go to the market and carry home of the good green suggestions begging for notice on the counters. Then use your cook book!'"

book and there lies the secret of her menu troubles. I can't stress too often and too strongly, that if you want to have varied menus and interesting ones, consult not one, but several cook books. Build yourself a culinary library. And keep on hand a file of blank recipe cards and add every new dish you hear about to the increasing library. For instance: One of the prettiest new salads of the season is a molded prune and tomato salad. I tried it at a friend's luncheon party. From a health standpoint, prunes have increased in value. Contrary to previous reports that prunes yielded acid residues in the blood, prunes have been found to have no effect on the alkalinity of the blood stream. To call them an "acid" fruit, as has been done, is incorrect. The minerals they contain are alkaline in reaction. Furthermore, two of the minerals found in prunes iron and copper, make them a leading blood-building food.

Prune and Tomato Salad

One cup cooked prunes; one cup cottage cheese; three tablespoons granulated gelatin; one half cup cold water; five cups tomato puree made from solid pack tomatoes; one bay leaf; four whole cloves; one half onion, chopped; one teaspoon salt; one eighth teaspoon pepper; dash tabasco sauce; lettuce and mayonnaise.

Pit prunes, cut into small pieces and mix with cottage cheese. Moisten gelatin in cold water. Combine tomato puree, bay leaf, cloves, onion, salt, pepper, and tabasco sauce and heat. Remove from fire and strain. Add moistened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pour into a shallow pan (jelly should be three fourths inch thick) and set. Cut into desired shapes. Spread prune mixture sandwich fashion between two layers. Serve on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

And here's another recipe using prunes, which I had served to me at a summer night's supper. It's easy too.

Prune Ham Loaf

One cup prunes; one tablespoon granulated gelatin; two cups broth; one fourth teaspoon salt; four egg yolks, beaten; one cup cold boiled ham, chopped; one half pint whipping cream.

Boil prunes in sufficient water to cover, thirty minutes, drain, pit, and cut into medium sized pieces. Dissolve gelatin in one fourth cup broth. Heat remaining broth, add salt, egg yolks, and cook until thick. Dissolve gelatin in hot broth; cool. When broth begins to stiffen add chopped ham and prunes, and fold in whipping cream. Let set until firm. Serves six.

Tuna Fish Casserole

One and one half cups diced carrots; one small onion, sliced; one and one half cups diced potatoes; one cup canned peas; one small can tuna fish; four tablespoons butter; four tablespoons flour; one half teaspoon salt; milk; buttered crumbs.

Cook carrots and onion in the liquid drained from a can of peas; as soon as the boiling point is reached add the potatoes. When the vegetables are soft, add the peas. Drain off the liquid in the saucepan; add it to the liquid from the can of tuna fish; measure the two and add enough milk to make one pint of liquid in all. Cook this with the butter and flour which have been creamed together. Add salt and pepper. Stir while cooking until thick.

Arrange alternate layers of cooked vegetables and the tuna fish in a baking dish. Pour over the thickened sauce and cover with buttered crumbs. Place on the lower rack in the moderate oven, 375 degrees to 400 degrees F. Bake twenty-five to thirty-five minutes.

Raspberry Brown Betty

Into a buttered baking dish place a thick layer of buttered crumbs then a layer of canned or fresh apples, sliced thin. Over this layer of buttered crumbs. Then a layer of raspberry jam, then a layer of buttered crumbs. Add one fourth cup boiling water. Place on the upper rack of the moderate oven, 375 degrees F. to 400 degrees F. Bake twenty-five to thirty minutes. Prepare and cook at the same time as the fish casserole. Serve at same meal.

Mrs. George Thurn

An Unusual, Chewy

Chocolate Nut Cake

Few people eat cake for any other reason than just the fine climax it gives to a delicious meal. But there may be some readers who are interested in cake from the dietetic standpoint. First and foremost, it is a heat and energy builder. When it is made with raisins, as in the following recipe, it contains the vitamins A, B and G, although B has lost some of its potency in the baking process. Raisins also supply minerals, particularly the blood builders, iron and copper.

Chew Chocolate Cake

One cup seedless raisins; one cup walnut kernels, coarsely chopped; six eggs; two cups all-purpose flour; two cups granulated sugar; two teaspoons baking powder; one half teaspoon soda; one half cup cocoa; three fourths teaspoon salt; eight tablespoons melted butter.

Wash raisins, drain, and put through food chopper, using medium knife. Beat eggs until thick and light; add flour, baking powder, soda, sugar, cocoa and salt sifted together, and beat until well blended. Add raisins and nuts and mix. Pour into two well greased and floured pans (about 11x7x1 1/2 inches) or three layer cake tins and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. thirty-five to forty minutes. Put together and frost top and sides with powdered sugar and butter frosting. Serves twelve to fourteen.

At last reports, the utility holding companies were living up to their name. The burden was a bag.

Questions and Answers

Will you please give me a successful recipe for dill pickles?

The flavor of these pickles is their particular goodness.

- 100 pickles
- 1 1/2 C. salt
- Water
- 2 qts. water
- 1 qt. vinegar
- 1 C. salt
- Grape or cherry leaves
- Whole grains black pepper
- Garlic, small piece
- 1 tsp. sugar
- Alum, small piece

Soak pickles in salt water overnight, using 1 1/2 C. salt with water to cover pickles.

Make a pickling solution by boiling 5 qts. water, vinegar and 1 C. salt. Let this liquid cool overnight. Next morning dry the pickles and fill the jars, placing grape or cherry leaves with spicing of whole pepper grains, small piece garlic, 1 tsp. sugar and a small piece of alum with layers of dill between pickles in each jar. Then cover pickles with vinegar solution and place lids on jars tightly.

Is canning with a small amount of sugar an economical advantage? Would you recommend it?

Sugarless canning is not economical. The addition of sugar during the cooking helps to develop the flavor of the fruit. The increased cost per jar of fruit because of any increase in the price of sugar is very slight—only a fraction of a cent. The price of sugar should not determine whether to can fruit or not.

Why is it that canning instructions always state to pack corn and beans loosely in the jars? Does this have anything to do with the keeping qualities of the product?

Corn, beans and lima beans expand during the processing period. Pack loosely to within 1 inch of the top of the jar to allow for this expansion. Other products shrink, and the jar can be filled to within 1/2 inch of top of the jar in jar cooked canning. Allowing this space in jar cooking insures a quicker seal than does filling the jar to overflowing with the liquid.

I have never been able to make pickles successfully. They always shrivel, get slippery, or become an unpleasant brown color. Can you tell me what is wrong?

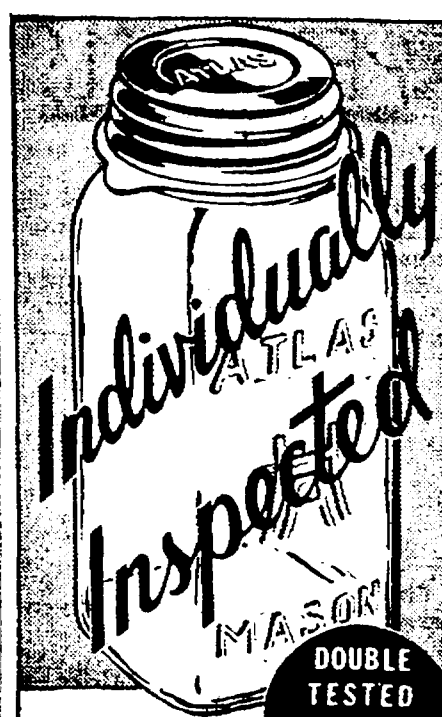

First of all follow a good recipe to get good results. Some of the faults you describe may be due to these causes:

Tough, shriveled pickles are the result of too much sugar or salt, or too strong a vinegar. Soft pickles are the result of using too strong a vinegar solution or too weak a brine. Slippery pickles are the result of letting the cucumbers stand above the brine. This also will soften them. Off colors may be produced by using the wrong kind of vinegar or cooking in a copper kettle.

Mrs. Geo. O. Thurn Gives Valuable Recipes to Add to Your Culinary Files

Try These Delicious Dishes In This Week's Menus; Healthful, Flavorful, Unusual and Appetizing

Dear Friends in Circleville:

So many good recipes are available these days with the wonderful products in our grocery stores and markets. I am always amazed when a woman says to me: "What shall I have for a guest luncheon? I don't seem to have any ideas." What I want to say each time this happens is: "Go to the grocery store and just look about at the wealth of delicious suggestions staring at you from the shelves. Go to the market and carry home of the good green suggestions begging for notice on the counters. Then use your cook book!"

Maybe she hasn't a good cook book—and there lies the secret of her menu troubles. I can't stress too often and too strongly, that if you want to have varied menus and interesting ones, consult not one, but several cook books. Build yourself a culinary library. And keep on hand a file of blank recipe cards and add every new dish you hear about to the increasing library. For instance:

One of the prettiest new salads of the season is a molded prune and tomato salad. I tried at a friend's luncheon party.

From a health standpoint, prunes have increased in value. Contrary to previous reports that prunes yielded acid residues in the blood, prunes have been found to have no effect on the alkalinity of the blood stream. To call them "an acid" fruit, as has been done, is incorrect. The minerals they contain are alkaline in reaction. Furthermore, two of the minerals found in prunes iron and copper, make them a leading blood-building food.

Prune and Tomato Salad

One cup cooked prunes; one cup cottage cheese; three tablespoons granulated gelatin; one half cup cold water; five cups tomato puree made from solid pack tomatoes; one bay leaf; four whole cloves; one half onion, chopped; one teaspoon salt; one eighth teaspoon pepper; dash tabasco sauce; lettuce and mayonnaise.

Pit prunes, cut into small pieces and mix with cottage cheese. Moisten gelatin in cold water. Combine tomato puree, bay leaf, cloves, onion, salt, pepper, and tabasco sauce and heat. Remove from fire and strain. Add moistened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pour into a shallow pan (jelly should be three fourths inch thick) and set. Cut into desired shapes. Spread prune mixture sandwich fashion between two layers. Serve on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

And here's another recipe using prunes, which I had served to me at a summer night's supper. It's easy too.

Prune Ham Loaf

One cup prunes; one tablespoon granulated gelatin; two cups broth; one fourth teaspoon salt; four egg yolks, beaten; one cup cold boiled ham, chopped; one half pint whipping cream.

Boil prunes in sufficient water to cover, thirty minutes, drain, pit, and cut into medium sized pieces. Dissolve gelatin in one fourth cup broth. Heat remaining broth, add salt, egg yolks, and cook until thick. Dissolve gelatin in hot broth; cool. When broth begins to stiffen add chopped ham and prunes, and fold in whipping cream. Let set until firm. Serves six.

Tuna Fish Casserole

One and one half cups diced carrots; one small onion, sliced; one and one half cups diced potatoes; one cup canned peas; one small can tuna fish; four tablespoons butter; four tablespoons flour; one half teaspoon salt; milk; buttered crumbs.

Cook carrots and onion in the liquid drained from a can of peas; as soon as the boiling point is reached add the potatoes. When the vegetables are soft, add the peas. Drain off the liquid from the saucepan; add to the liquid from the can of tuna fish; measure the two and add enough milk to make one pint of liquid in all. Cook this with the butter and flour which have been creamed together. Add salt and pepper. Stir while cooking until thick.

Arrange alternate layers of cooked vegetables and the tuna fish in a baking dish. Pour over the thickened sauce and cover with buttered crumbs. Place on the lower rack in the moderate oven, 375 degrees to 400 degrees F. Bake twenty-five to thirty-five minutes.

Raspberry Brown Betty

Into a buttered baking dish place a thick layer of buttered crumbs then a layer of canned or fresh apples, sliced thin. Over this layer of buttered crumbs. Then a layer of raspberry jam, then a layer of buttered crumbs. Add one fourth cup boiling water. Place on the upper rack of the moderate oven, 375 degrees F. to 400 degrees F. Bake twenty-five to thirty minutes. Prepare and cook at the same time as the fish casserole. Serve at same meal.

Mrs. George Thurn

An Unusual, Chewy

Chocolate Nut Cake

Few people eat cake for any other reason than just the fine climax it gives to a delicious meal. But there may be some readers who are interested in cake from the dietetic standpoint. First and foremost, it is a heat and energy builder. When it is made with raisins, as in the following recipe, it contains the vitamins A, B and G, although B has lost some of its potency in the baking process. Raisins also supply minerals, particularly the blood builders, iron and copper.

Chew Chocolate Cake

One cup seedless raisins; one cup walnut kernels, coarsely chopped; six eggs; two cups all-purpose flour; two cups granulated sugar; two teaspoons baking powder; one half teaspoon soda; one half cup cocoa; three fourths teaspoon salt; eight tablespoons melted butter.

Wash raisins, drain, and put through food chopper, using medium knife. Beat eggs until thick and light; add flour, baking powder, soda, sugar, cocoa and salt sifted together, and beat until well blended. Add raisins and nuts and mix. Pour into two well greased and floured pans (about 11x7x1 1/2 inches) or three layer cake tins and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. thirty-five to forty minutes. Put together and frost top and sides with powdered sugar and butter frosting. Serves twelve to fourteen.

At last reports, the utility holding companies were living up to their name. The burden was a bag.

Questions and Answers

Will you please give me a successful recipe for dill pickles?

The flavor of these pickles is their particular goodness.

100 pickles

1 1/2 C. salt

Water

5 qts. water

1 qt. vinegar

1 C. salt

Grape or cherry leaves

Whole grains black pepper

Garlic, small piece

1 tsp. sugar

Alum, small piece

Soak pickles in salt water overnight, using 1 1/2 C. salt with water to cover pickles.

Make a pickling solution by boiling 5 qts. water, vinegar and 1 C. salt. Let this liquid cool overnight. Next morning dry the pickles and fill the jars, placing grape or cherry leaves with spicing of whole pepper grains, small piece garlic, 1 tsp. sugar and a small piece of alum with layers of dill between pickles in each jar. Then cover pickles with vinegar solution and place lids on jars tightly.

Is canning with a small amount of sugar an economical advantage? Would you recommend it?

Sugarless canning is not economical. The addition of sugar during the cooking helps to develop the flavor of the fruit. The increased cost per jar of fruit because of any increase in the price of sugar is very slight—only a fraction of a cent. The price of sugar should not determine whether to can fruit or not.

Why is it that canning instructions always state to pack corn and beans loosely in the jars? Does this have anything to do with the keeping qualities of the product?

Corn, beans and lima beans expand during the processing period. Pack loosely to within 1 inch of the top of the jar to allow for this expansion. Other products shrink, and the jar can be filled to within 1/2 inch of top of the jar in jar cooking. Allowing this space in jar cooking insures a quicker seal than does filling the jar to overflowing with the liquid.

I have never been able to make pickles successfully. They always shrivel, get slippery, or become an unpleasant brown color. Can you tell me what is wrong?

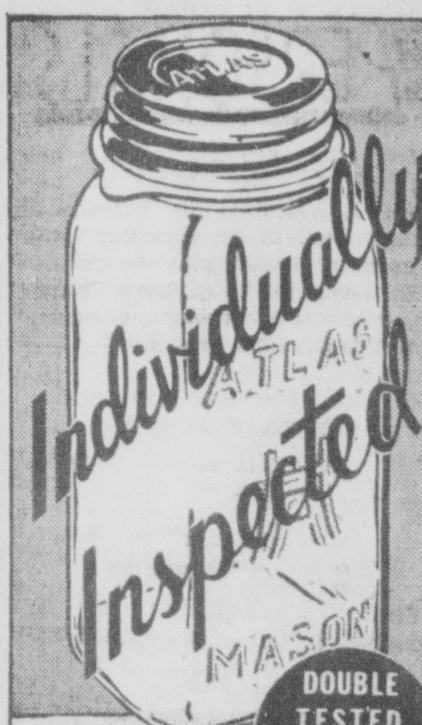

First of all follow a good recipe to get good results. Some of the faults you describe may be due to these causes:

Tough, shriveled pickles are the result of too much sugar or salt, or too strong a vinegar. Soft pickles are the result of using too strong a vinegar solution or too weak a brine. Slippery pickles are the result of letting the cucumbers stand above the brine. This will soften them. Off colors may be produced by using the wrong kind of vinegar or cooking in a copper kettle.

UNREAD FAVORITES

It is with hesitancy and reluctance that we question the sincerity of some thirty-two contemporary writers—novelists, poets, critics and journalists—who recently in the "Books" section of the New York Herald-Tribune set down the titles of books they have always meant to read and never have read.

Thirty of these thirty-two writers listed ninety different titles—books that have intrigued their interest for many years, but, for one reason or another, remained unread. Six books are named no fewer than twenty-three times. Dante's "Inferno" and Gibbon's "Decline and Fall" appear in the list of five of the contributors; "Don Quixote" is repeated four times; "Das Kapital," Goethe's "Faust" and Dostoyevsky's
"Arabia Deserta" occur three times each.

Two happy and, we are convinced, thoroughly honest souls, were bold enough to say there were no books they had any real desire to read that remained unread, which leads us to the suspicion that perhaps the thirty were not so sincerely eager as they profess to read the books named.

Really determined and enthusiastic readers will always manage, by begging, borrowing or stealing, to gain possession of the books they want to read. And then when they have them, they remain awake until all hours of the night and morning in order that every page, line and word may be consumed.

When men and women permit years and often the greater part of a lifetime to pass without reading a book or a number of books, a reasonable conclusion is that the compelling urge is not present.

SPEEDING UP WAR

THE doughboy who plodded twenty miles a day, laden with pack and rifle, seventeen years ago, will read reports from Pine Camp,
N. Y., and wonder at the changes time has wrought.

The stories tell of the movement of an entire division of infantry, field artillery, engineers, medical detachments and signal corps at a speed which at times reached thirty miles an hour.

Radio patrols eliminated the possibility of surprise flank attacks.
Mechanized cavalry constituted the advance guard, while one of the outstanding features of the day was the work of a signal company, which laid eight miles of telephone wire in twenty-five minutes.

Science has given speed to war and it is doubtful if the world will again witness the warfare of position which so largely distinguished the World War and in which millions of men remained entrenched in the earth for weeks and months at a time.

However, it is no more pleasant to anticipate a swiftly moving war, one distinguished by the whirring of motors, than it is to contemplate one marked by the plodding of hobnailed heels on the hard highways and through the mud.

All achieve finally the same objectives—a shambles of torn and bleeding bodies, devastation and misery for years to come.

Rule No. 1: Never give your stomach a mixture that you couldn't eat if you saw it mixed on a plate.

"I was tempted to tell Simeon Boisevain he had a grandson."

"WE USED to play together . . . Miss Morelle and I . . . in this house," Nita went on. "Even then it was not gay. There was always some- thing lonely about it. Something queer. And when Miss Morelle fell in love with Maurice Creel, I helped her to see him nights; took their messages back and forth. Perhaps it was my fault things happened as they did. But I loved Miss Morelle, and I knew how unhappy she was with her father. I helped her run away, packed the few things she took, and in the dead of night got her horse and one for Maurice out of the stable.
"There was a gash across her face when she came out and got on her horse. . . . Old Simeon had struck her with his riding whip . . . but she was happier and gay than I had ever seen her before. Maurice was young, too, the son of one of Simeon's schoolmates in France, but a boy with not a cent in the world.
"Well, they went away. Months passed before I heard from Miss Morelle again. She did not write to her father. But she wrote to me, after everything had happened. She was in Paris, and Maurice had been killed three days after they had left here. She was broken hearted, of course, but there was joy in her letters, too, for she said she was going to have a child who would be another Maurice to her.
"I rejoiced with her from far away, but I did not hear from her again for a number of years. I sent her letter after letter to her, but they were all returned, as she had moved. I thought perhaps she had died. If she had, we would have had no way to know, for I was the only one who kept in touch with her.
"Six years later I received a letter, an unhappy one, although at the time I could not determine just how it was unhappy. She had a son, then five years old, but I was not to tell a soul about him. Not even her father, Simeon. In her first letter, she had also warned me to keep her son's coming from her father, as she thought it might embitter him still more.
"She had named the boy Maurice after the father. I took her at her word, and did not mention Maurice to anyone, not even Simeon.
"Then I did not hear for years after that, 10 perhaps, when I got another letter. But Maurice was not mentioned. Miss Morelle merely wrote that she was not feeling so well. . . . that she had much to worry her. . . . that I was on no condition to mention to her father, if he was still living, that she had written to me, that she was even alive. More years went on, lonely ones for me, because I had Miss Morelle in mind constantly. We had been very close as girls, you know. Her tutors were mine, for Mr. Boisevain had educated us both well, although I was the daughter of his cook and his gardener.
"Of course, I said nothing to Simeon Boisevain about Miss Morelle, but at times I was tempted to tell him he had a grandson. I think it would have pleased him greatly, because my mother said that when Miss Morelle was born he had wanted a son badly. And his grief over the birth of a daughter had killed his wife. True he pretended to hate Miss Morelle, yet at times in her childhood, I'm sure he had loved her. He was a strange man, unforgiving, with a nasty temper.
"But I said nothing. By this time my mother had died, and my father too. Mr. Boisevain seemed to have lost interest in the house, in everything. He did not replace the old servants. I took my mother's place as his cook. One by one the

Harmony Among Young Democrats Preserved By Jim Roosevelt Dodging

WASHINGTON—Probably the most significant untold story of the Young Democrats' convention in Milwaukee recently was the neat piece of dodging done by Jim Roosevelt in order to preserve harmony within the ranks.
Nominally, Jimmy was lined up with the faction of Young Demos vigorously opposed to his father's New Deal policies. Leader of the faction was Cliff Woodward, at that time national president, and backing a ticket opposed to major Roosevelt policies.
On occasion, Jimmy Roosevelt has not hesitated to oppose some of his father's pet policies, notably the abolition of child labor. But this time he dodged.
Although National Secretary of the organization, he did not show up in Milwaukee. He claimed his yeast business required his presence in New Jersey.
Later Cliff Woodward, head of the anti-New Deal ticket, telephoned his alleged ally, Jimmy said he was busy making a speech.
When this did not satisfy the convention, Woodward telephoned again. This time Jimmy said he was ill.
Finally he sent his young brother, John, Harvard sophomore, who works in Jimmy's yeast factory. John flew to Milwaukee, sat on the platform, looked decorative, but said nothing. Between sessions he sat in his hotel room, saw nobody, made no mistakes.

Thus Jimmy was represented, but he slid out from under the anti-New Deal ticket. As a result, the New Deal ticket, headed by Frank Wickham of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, was elected.
Jim Farley, who guided the convention by long distance telephone, considered this an important victory. He did not want dissension within Democratic ranks—even young Democrats; wanted to give an example of unity to the nation.

Those Things
New Mexico's brawny Governor Clyde Tingley is credited with being a shrewd politician in his own state, but he is a bit vague about national issues.
He and Governor Allred of Texas recently conferred with the President regarding Federal funds for projects of joint interest to their two states.

During the discussion, White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre came into the President's office with a message for Tingley. While he was reading it Allred brought up the subject of the pending Federal oil control bill.
He was telling the President that Texas opposed such regulation when Tingley looked up and heard Allred say, "We are strong for States' Rights, Mr. President."
"Yess, sir, Mr. President," broke in Tingley. "I think those are good things. We would like to have some of them in New Mexico, too."

Too Fat
Sixty-five next month, Betts has raised and lowered Congressmen for seventeen years. He once caught corpulent Congressman Woodruff of Michigan between the closing doors.
"No, Woodruff wasn't sore. He knew I didn't go to do it."
It was when Roosevelt came to deliver his bonus veto that Betts kept him waiting. He ran the elevator non-stop from the basement level, where members get aboard, to the floor level, while the President closed his heels on the ground floor.

"That was the President's fault," he remarked. "He was ten minutes ahead of time."

Due at work at 3 in the morning, Betts arrived at 7, always dressed as if he were still clerk in a dry goods store in Athens, Georgia.
He likes the new elevators because they will take a load of stout Congressmen without bumping in the basement.
"Used to be with them old machines, when there was a heavy load, we'd hit bottom. And they'd blame it on me, but wasn't my fault—it was theirs, for going so fat."

Merry-Go-Round
Congress once met in a brick building that stood on the site now occupied by the new marble and limestone Supreme Court palace. This was after the British burned the Capitol in 1814.
Only a few friends know that one of the first things the mother of the late Senator Bronson Cutting did after his death was to provide for the families of the pilot and co-pilot who were killed in the crash that cost her her son.
The NRA is having a hard time making the industrial studies it is supposed to be doing. The American Iron and Steel Institute has refused to submit data unless it is permitted to review the findings of the Government experts.
Governor Gene Talmadge's anti-Administration crusading is running into stormy weather right in his own back yard. At a recent meeting in Atlanta, Ga., he was heckled so hotly that police had to be summoned to keep order.
For the first time since 1929, the National Machine Tool Builders Association will hold a trade ex-position.

Poems That Live

TOUJOURS AMOUR
Prithce tell me, Dimple-Chin,
At what age does Love begin?
Your blue eyes have scarcely seen
Summers three, my fairy queen,
But a miracle of sweets,
Soft approach, sly retreats,
Show the little archer there,
Hidden in your pretty hair;
When shall learn a heart to win?
Prithce tell me, Dimple-Chin!
"Och! the rosy lips reply,
'I can't tell you if I try.
'Tis so long I can't remember:
Ask some younger lass than I!"
Words of Wisdom
Tell, O tell me, Grizzled-Face,
Of your heart and head, keep pace?
When does hoary Love expire,
When do frosts put out the fire?
Can its embers burn below?
All that chill December snow?
Care you still soft hands to press,
Bonny heads to smooth and bless?
When does Love give up the chase?
Tell, O tell me, Grizzled-Face!
"Ah! the wise old lips reply,
'Youth may pass and strength may die;
But of Love I can't forget:
Ask some older man than I!'

The cook looked flabbergasted. "Mash the peas?" she exclaimed. "Yes, mash the peas," repeated her mistress. "Mr. Jinks is scared that they might roll off his knife."

Verdict of Tuberculosis Need Not Bring Despair

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
IT IS, IN A WAY, a sad experience to have to tell anyone that he has tuberculosis. And yet the message always can be accompanied with hope and assurance that recovery is almost certain. But the patient who has not been assured of the truth of this message is certain to have a few black days, during which he feels as if he had received a severe sentence.
This, however, is not the most dangerous nor the most critical period in the life of the patient.
The symptoms of these releases are the same as the symptoms of the original disease, but the patient is inclined to disregard them. He feels that he has been cured and that the disease can never return. This is not true, and the patient who is wise enough to submit to another period of rigid treatment when there is any symptom of relapse, is the one who will eventually make a complete recovery.

UNREAD FAVORITES

IT is with hesitancy and reluctance that we question the sincerity of some thirty-two contemporary writers—novelists, poets, critics and journalists—who recently in the "Books" section of the New York Herald-Tribune set down the titles of books they have always meant to read and never have read.

Thirty of these thirty-two writers listed ninety different titles—books that have intrigued their interest for many years, but, for one reason or another, remained unread. Six books are named no fewer than twenty-three times. Dante's "Inferno" and Gibbon's "Decline and Fall" appear in the list of five of the contributors; "Don Quixote" is repeated four times; "Das Kapital," Goethe's "Faust" and Doughty's "Arabia Deserta" occur three times each.

Two happy and, we are convinced, thoroughly honest souls, were bold enough to say there were no books they had any real desire to read that remained unread, which leads us to the suspicion that perhaps the thirty were not so sincerely eager as they profess to read the books named.

Really determined and enthusiastic readers will always manage, by begging, borrowing or stealing, to gain possession of the books they want to read. And then when they have them, they remain awake until all hours of the night and morning in order that every page, line and word may be consumed.

When men and women permit years and often the greater part of a lifetime to pass without reading a book or a number of books, a reasonable conclusion is that the compelling urge is not present.

SPEEDING UP WAR

THE doughboy who plodded twenty miles a day, laden with pack and rifle, seventeen years ago, will read reports from Pine Camp, N. Y., and wonder at the changes time has wrought.

The stories tell of the movement of an entire division of infantry, field artillery, engineers, medical detachments and signal corps at a speed which at times reached thirty miles an hour.

Radio patrols eliminated the possibility of surprise flank attacks. Mechanized cavalry constituted the advance guard, while one of the outstanding features of the day was the work of a signal company, which laid eight miles of telephone wire in twenty-five minutes.

Science has given speed to war and it is doubtful if the world will again witness the warfare of position which so largely distinguished the World War and in which millions of men remained entrenched in the earth for weeks and months at a time.

However, it is no more pleasant to anticipate a swiftly moving war, one distinguished by the whirring of motors, than it is to contemplate one marked by the plodding of hobnailed heels on the hard highways and through the mud.

All achieve finally the same objectives—a shambles of torn and bleeding bodies, devastation and misery for years to come.

Bidding went: South, 2 Clubs, which was stretching values held in minor suits, but the opening bidder had a partner who sometimes needed stirring up to insure strong support; West, 2 Spades; the intervening bid made it unnecessary for North to respond and his immediate support on 3 small trumps would have been misleading; South, 3 Diamonds; North, 4 Diamonds; South, 5 Clubs, indicating that he did not want to be ruffed with only 4 diamonds. As it turned out North's pass was wise. West did not double, as he wanted to avoid a shift back to his ruff diamond suit. The opening lead was the K of spades and declarer was in with his singleton.

start pulling trumps until dummy had ruffed a heart. Dummy won two heart tricks. South did not like the drop of West's J of hearts on the second lead of that suit, but he had to risk a ruff. Dummy's lowest trump put South in the lead, showing at the same time that West has as many trumps as declarer. When that occurs, the side first forcing the opponent to ruff gains an advantage and can handle the situation the better. It would be fine if West were out of hearts and would be foot enough to ruff. Declarer led his last heart, finding West with a third card of that suit. Dummy ruffed. Dummy's last trump was led and declarer was in. He led a diamond, not expecting West to ruff the first round of that suit. Had he counted West's hand carefully he would have foreseen the ruff. West led a spade, forcing the declarer to ruff, but that did not matter, as declarer always could keep one trump more than West. Declarer led his Ace of clubs, picking up next to the last club held against him. He ruffed that last trump out of West, by continuing to lead good diamonds until West ruffed. Finally West ruffed and lead back another top spade, obliging declarer to use his last trump, but South held no more losers, and spread his cards for the 5-odd which he had bid.

As a double-dummy problem it should have been possible for South to go game at diamonds, even if East holds one more trump than declarer, but it is improbable that declarer would have led back a club, and ruffed East, after dummy had played its two heart honors.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

CHAPTER 40

"WE USED to play together . . . Miss Morelle and I . . . in this house," Nita went on. "Even then it was not gay. There was always something lonely about it. Something queer. And when Miss Morelle fell in love with Maurice Creel, I helped her to see him nights; took their messages back and forth. Perhaps it was my fault things happened as they did. But I loved Miss Morelle, and I knew how unhappy she was with her father. I helped her run away, packed the few things she took, and in the dead of night got her horse and one for Maurice out of the stable."

"There was a gash across her face when she came out and got on her horse. . . . Old Simeon had struck her with his riding whip . . . but she was happier and gay than I had ever seen her before. Maurice was young, too, the son of one of Simeon's schoolmates in France, but a boy with not a cent in the world."

"Well, they went away. Months passed before I heard from Miss Morelle again. She did not write to her father. But she wrote to me, after everything had happened. She was in Paris, and Maurice had been killed three days after they had left here. She was broken hearted, of course, but there was joy in her letters, too, for she said she was going to have a child who would be another Maurice to her."

"I rejoiced with her from far away, but I did not hear from her again for a number of years. I sent letter after letter to her, but they were all returned, as she had moved. I thought perhaps she had died. If she had, we would have had no way to know, for I was the only one who kept in touch with her."

"Six years later I received a letter, an unhappy one, although at the time I could not determine just how it was unhappy. She had a son, then five years old, but I was not to tell a soul about him. Not even her father, Simeon. In her first letter, she had also warned me to keep her son's coming from her father, as she thought it might embitter him still more."

"She had named the boy Maurice after the father. I took her at her word, and did not mention Maurice to anyone, not even Simeon."

"Then I did not hear for years after that, 10 perhaps, when I got another letter. But Maurice was not mentioned. Miss Morelle merely wrote that she was not feeling so well . . . that she had much to worry her . . . that I was on no condition to mention to her father, if he was still living, that she had written to me, that she was even alive. More years went on, lonely ones for me, because I had Miss Morelle in mind constantly. We had been very close as girls, you know. Her tutors were mine, for Mr. Boisevain had educated us both well, although I was the daughter of his cook and his geydner."

"Of course, I said nothing to Simeon Boisevain about Miss Morelle, but at times I was tempted to tell him he had a grandson. I think it would have pleased him greatly, because my mother said that when Miss Morelle was born he had wanted a son badly. And his grief over the birth of a daughter had killed his wife. True, he pretended to hate Miss Morelle, yet at times in her childhood, I'm sure he half loved her. He was a strange man, unforgiving, with a nasty temper."

"But I said nothing. By this time my mother had died, and my father too. Mr. Boisevain seemed to have lost interest in the house . . . in everything. He did not replace the old servants. I took my mother's place as his cook. One by one the horses in the stable died, and as there was no further use for help in the stable, they went. Mr. Boisevain had always been proud of his horses, and to see him neglect them was pitiful to me."

"I could not do everything, so the place ran down, as the years went by. For in the last years of Mr. Boisevain's life, there were only two of us servants left, me, and an old man, getting feeble and half blind."

"Mr. Boisevain would sit hour after hour in the living room, mumbling to himself, cursing Miss Morelle. Finally we had no visitors because he was not cordial to those who did come. Then we were alone in the house, I with thoughts of love for Miss Morelle, and he with thoughts of hate."

"He died 15 years ago, leaving his fortune to Miss Morelle, all of it, except a small annuity for me. He had never changed his will, as he said he was going to. Miss Morelle did not need the money, however, as she had her mother's fortune for years. Her mother was a French woman, as Simeon's people had been."

"I called her immediately about her father's death, and urged her and her son to come back to the old house. It was three or four years before I had an answer, and that answer was very short. She and Maurice were coming to live at the house, but I was to tell no one that Maurice was coming. Indeed, I was to keep her own arrival as secret as possible. She did not want to come, she said, but Maurice did. I can remember the end of the letter still. I shall remember it as long as I live. You will keep with me, Nita, when you see me and the man who is my Maurice's son."

"It was dark in the room now. Janet could not see Nita, but she could hear her heavy, labored breathing, and feel the pressure of her hand. They had no light, the two of them, the girl lying on the cot, and the woman sitting on the edge of it."

Nita's voice had grown very husky.

"Then they came?" Janet whispered.

"They came. I obeyed Miss Morelle. I told no one, except the groom in Boisevain of her arrival but, of course, it leaked out from him. No one knew that her son came with her, though."

"Yes, they came, he and she, in a car in the dead of night. I was sleeping when the knocker on the front door awakened me, booming through the great lonely house. I hurried downstairs to let them in . . . my room, then, was at the back of the second floor. A big car was on the road and Miss Morelle called to me, 'Nita! Nita!'"

"Later I saw him, and threw my self in Miss Morelle's arms and wept with her."

"That was when he laughed and told me I could not talk . . . that night he came. The driver of the big car and I managed to carry Miss Morelle into the house. She could not walk. When she was in the living room, the driver left. I don't know who he was, he was not where he came from. But he had driven Miss Morelle and Maurice from Vancouver."

"Was Rajah with them?" "Yes, but he was a young dog then, a puppy. How or where he got the dog, she never knew and he never told. He trained Rajah himself. . . . The dog feared him so much he would do anything Maurice commanded. I have a scar here on my arm where Rajah tore the flesh away."

"Why did you stay here, when it was so awful, Nita?" "I had to stay. I couldn't go. But then, I would have stayed anyway to help Miss Morelle. She was much more miserable than I. Every day she was more unhappy, and Maurice gloated in her unhappiness. He hated her . . . he hated everyone."

"Hush! He's not like us . . . it was Simeon Boisevain's curse!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

Harmony Among Young Democrats Preserved By Jim Roosevelt Dodging

WASHINGTON—Probably the most significant untold story of the Young Democrats' convention in Milwaukee recently was the neat piece of dodging done by Jim Roosevelt in order to preserve harmony within the ranks.

Nominally, Jimmy was lined up with the faction of Young Dems vigorously opposed to his father's New Deal policies. Leader of the faction was Cliff Woodward, at that time national president, and backing a ticket opposed to major Roosevelt policies.

On occasion, Jimmy Roosevelt has not hesitated to oppose some of his father's pet policies, notably the abolition of child labor. But this time he dodged.

Although National Secretary of the organization, he did not show up in Milwaukee. He claimed his yeast business required his presence in New Jersey.

Later Cliff Woodward, head of the anti-New Deal ticket, telephoned his alleged ally, Jimmy said he was busy making a speech.

When this did not satisfy the convention, Woodward telephoned again. This time Jimmy said he was ill.

Finally he sent his young brother, John, Harvard sophomore, who works in Jimmy's yeast factory. John flew to Milwaukee, sat on the platform, looked decorative, but said nothing. Between sessions he sat in his hotel room, saw nobody, made no mistakes.

Thus Jimmy was represented, but he slid out from under the anti-New Deal ticket. As a result, the New Deal ticket, headed by Frank Wickham of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, was elected.

Jim Farley, who guided the convention by long distance telephone, considered this an important victory. He did not want dissension within Democratic ranks—even young Democrats; wanted to give an example of unity to the nation.

Those Things

New Mexico's brawny Governor Clyde Tingley is credited with being a shrewd politician in his own state, but he is a bit vague about national issues.

He and Governor Allred of Texas recently conferred with the President regarding Federal funds for projects of joint interest to their two states.

During the discussion, White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre came into the President's office with a message for Tingley. While he was reading it Allred brought up the subject of the pending Federal oil control bill.

He was telling the President that Texas opposed such regulation when Tingley looked up and heard Allred say, "We are strong for States' Rights, Mr. President."

"Yes, sir, Mr. President," broke in Tingley, "I think those are good things. We would like to have some of them in New Mexico, too."

Too Fat

Sixty-five next month, Betts has raised and lowered Congressmen for seventeen years. He once caught corrupt Congressman Woodruff of Michigan between the closing doors.

"No, Woodruff wasn't sore. He knew I didn't go to do it."

It was when Roosevelt came to deliver his bonus

veto that Betts kept him waiting. He ran the elevator non-stop from the basement level, where members get aboard, to the floor level, while the President cooled his heels on the ground floor.

"That was the President's fault," he remarked. "He was ten minutes ahead of time."

Due to work at 3 in the morning, Betts arrived at 7 a.m. dressed as if he were still clerk in a dry goods store in Athens, Georgia.

He likes the new elevators because they will take a load of stout Congressmen without bumping in the basement.

"Used to be with them old machines, when there was a heavy load, we'd hit bottom. And they'd blame it on me, but wasn't my fault—it was theirs, for being so fat."

Verdict of Tuberculosis Need Not Bring Despair

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS, IN A WAY, a sad experience to have to tell anyone that he has tuberculosis. And yet the message always can be accompanied with hope and assurance.

Recovery is almost certain. But the patient who has not been assured of the truth of this message is certain to have a few black days, during which he feels as if he had received a severe sentence.

This, however, is not the most dangerous nor the most critical period in the life of the patient. What happens after the diagnosis is made is that the patient begins treatment, finds that indeed the assurances which were given him are true, that recovery is, in most cases, rapid and evident to the patient himself.

The time comes when the patient leaves the sanitarium or stops the treatment with the verdict of "arrested." It means he can go back to the world, he can go back to life, he can go back to work. And the next year from the time he does that is, to my mind, the most critical period in the tuberculosis patient's life. Because the disease is notably one of ups and downs. Response to treatment, especially the first treatment, is nearly always good. And then the patient may be discouraged by the occurrence of a period when he seems to lose ground. It is an unusual case that goes to bed and proceeds to an uninterrupted recovery. Even what appears to be the judgment of an experienced physician to be a condition of arrest may mean that with the extra work that a patient begins to do after discharge, he will have a relapse.

The symptoms of these relapses are the same as the symptoms of the original disease, but the patient is inclined to disregard them. He feels that he has been cured and that the disease can never return. This is not true, and the patient who is wise enough to submit to another period of rigid treatment when there is any symptom of relapse, is the one who will eventually make a complete recovery.

14 TOURNEYS PLANNED FOR GOLF COURSE

Interest Remains High Late In Season Many Features Planned By Hrobos

Although the Pickaway Country club golf championships have been settled, there is no word of interest.

Enil Hrobos, club professional, today announced tournament plans clear into October and some of them are going to be honeys.

The program follows:
Sunday, Sept. 8—The Cryder Memorial match trophy shall be played for. This is a handicap event open to all club members. Participants must play 18 holes anytime Sunday buty. Rain or shine.

Tuesday, Sept. 10—The 6-hole twilight is a one-club handicap tournament. A certain club is selected and all players must use that club and that one only. A midiron or mashie are usually the best. All shots from the tee are played with the one club.

Wednesday, Sept. 11—Stag Day. Thursday, Sept. 12—A three blind selected holes straight play twilight tournament shall take place.

Load and Lifter

Sunday, Sept. 15—A mixed Load and Lifter tournament. This event played as a two-ball foursome. There is one good player and one poor player on each side, the 2-player team being chosen on the basis of handicaps. This tournament is run off as the regular two-man team event scoring with the same system as a 2-man event. Points and medal count.

Tuesday, Sept. 17—Cross country twilight. Instead of playing the holes in their regular order the course is re-mapped so that some real long distances will be covered from tee to green. In other words start on No. 1 tee and play for No. 7 green. The second hole would be from No. 8 tee to hole No. 9 for instance. Some holes are 1,000 yards long or more. Three holes will be played with no handicaps.

Wednesday, Sept. 18—Fall festival, all day rally. Some of the events of the day will be: two members in knickerbockers will play two members in long trousers; choice 4-man team of the day; choice 2-man team of the day; medalist high scorer; two blondes vs. two brunettes. Many other details will be announced later. For early

"Strip" Golfers Conclude Match as Husbands Sigh

SILVERTON, Ore., Sept. 6—Husbands of Silverton's "strip" golfers sighed a heavy sigh of relief today.

The reason for the deep sighs was that the "strip" golf tournament reservations call the pro. Mr. Hrobos on that day will give 15 tips on how to improve your game. Wilder's string putting contest will also be held.

May Re-Play Four

Thursday, Sept. 10—Remorse golf twilight. The event is just the opposite from a No. 10. Every contestant has the privilege of asking his opponent to play any four holes, provided he calls the shot before the next one has been played. This is a handicap match.

Sunday, Sept. 22—Mixed Octopus event. This is a 2-men, 2-women event, four on a team. The eight players play only two balls and each member of each team is responsible for the use of only two clubs. In other words, the same player on all sides must play all driving-iron and mid-iron shots, the same player must make all mashie and mashie-niblick shots and the fourth will use only niblick and putter. Each team selects a captain whose job it is to decide what club will be used. Team members are drawn from a hat.

Tuesday, Sept. 24—Obstacle twilight putting contest. The same as any putting contest except that obstacles are placed in the path of the ball.

Thursday, Sept. 26—The Wolf and Boo handicap twilight. This is a real event in which contestants will give handicaps of so many woofs and boos instead of strokes. He can use any of his woofs and boos at any time and can yell as loudly as he likes at the most psychological moment.

Sunday, Sept. 29—Mixed rotation event. Every player's bag is equipped with the same clubs. Brassie, midiron, mashie, niblick and putter. These are the only ones allowed and they must be used in rotation. Some will be putting with a driver and others driving with a niblick.

Tuesday, Oct. 1—Twilight weekly jack-pot. Fewest trap shots event.

Thursday, Oct. 3—Twilight weekly jack-pot finish. No miss tee shot.

FRENCHMAN LOSES CHANNEL ATTEMPT

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 6—Paul Chotteau, French swimming star and former World War flyer, today had failed in his fourth attempt to swim the choppy 38-mile channel between Santa Catalina island and the mainland.

After being in the water more than 24 hours, swept far off his original course by adverse tides and at one time threatened by a school of sharks, Chotteau was lifted from the water shortly before dusk yesterday, about three miles off Poino Firmin and 12 miles from his original destination.

Intending to swim from Catalina to Santa Monica, Chotteau, who entered the water at 4:35 p. m. Wednesday, yesterday changed his mind in midchannel and headed for Lone Beach, but was unable to reach that goal.

After being taken to a hospital to recuperate Chotteau today announced he would make another attempt to negotiate the tricky channel in a few weeks.

BUCK MENTOR IS SILENT ON PREDICTIONS

Schmidt Sees Big Ten Teams Stronger; Titles Won In November, He Says.

By MAURY C. KOBLINTZ.
COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—Francis Schmidt, formerly known as the "Mad Genius of the Southwest" but more recently of Ohio State, was due back in town today after paying a brief visit here yesterday.

The Buckeye football coach, back from a tour of summer coaching clinics which took him from Texas to Illinois, stopped in the Capital City long enough to renew acquaintances before leaving for Cleveland where he was to attend a Buckeye alumni meeting.

Schmidt Amazed
Although his Scarlet warriors are being touted as the team most likely to commit mayhem with all opponents this fall, the lainky Texan is a bit dismayed by the burst of enthusiasm by Ohio State grid followers who would have the Bucks winning the Big Ten, and any other kind of a championship, five weeks before the season actually gets under way.

Schmidt belongs to the old school of coaches. Far from being a pessimist, he still believes that championships are won in November as far as football is concerned.

"The fans are showing a marvelous attitude but I don't want them to become too over-confident," Schmidt said.

He lost little time in pointing out that practically every Big Ten opponent Ohio faces will be much stronger than last fall.

"Indiana will be much stronger while Northwestern is in the grip of a 'New Deal' promulgated by the arrival of a new coach—Lynn Waldorf. The rest of the conference opponents, Chicago, Illinois, and Michigan, are vastly improved squads."

Face Tough Opener
Grid students here believe the Buckeyes will be in for a tough time in their opening game Oct. 5 against Kentucky. Although most fans have been taking the "Kentuckians lightly, it is no great secret among the sports writers that Chet Wynne's team is pointing for the Ohio State game.

The Colonels finished the season strong last fall and handed Cincinnati a 27 to 0 reverse. With a much better team in prospect, the Lexington boys might cause the Bucks plenty of trouble.

Schmidt was expected back late today. His first move, probably will be to call a meeting with his coaching staff and map out the pre-season activities.

Approximately 55 players have been invited to return for early fall practice which starts Tuesday. The pre-season squad will be composed of a dozen ends, eight tackles, 10 guards, five centers, nine halfbacks, seven quarterbacks, and four fullbacks.

LION AS HOUSE PET

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—Police said there was no law against keeping pets in the owner's back yard as long as neighbors entered no complaints. They granted permission allowing E. Waldron to keep his 18-month-old lion cub, "Spotty." Neighbors had not objected.

Kentucky Has a New Man o' War

Bert (Man o' War) Johnson

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 6.—In Bert (Man o' War) Johnson, 193-pound gridiron terror, the University of Kentucky boasts one of the greatest leather-lug-gers in America, who is destined to come into his own this fall.

Playing at left halfback, the key backfield position in the Notre Dame system as taught at Kentucky by the former Irish fullback, Chet Wynne, husky Johnson was one of the best halfbacks in the south last fall. None of the opposing teams could hold him and he did more damage against Alabama's great eleven than any player faced by the Rose Bowl champs.

Kentucky, with 14 points, did more scoring against Alabama than any other foe. Stanford making but 13 points in the Rose Bowl, and it was Johnson who contributed both of the Kentucky touchdowns. One of these was a five-yard end run and the other, a 69-yard sprint, was the longest run made again at the Tide in years.

As a sophomore last year, Johnson was unanimous choice for all-Southeastern conference halfback, the only soph to be so honored. Johnson not only bears the brunt of the ball carrying, but also is an excellent punter and passer; blocks superbly and is a bear on defense.

Johnson will be Kentucky's first serious bid for an All-American.

SEPT. 28 IS SET AS CADDIES DAY

About THIS and THAT By the Second Guesser

Star Philistine Star

This Star Philistine, big horse owned by H. B. Cramer, manager of the A. & P. store, is quite a performer—The horse beat such speedsters as Peter-at-Law, T. D. Van and others at the state fair—It has now won its last five races—Cramer has the big trophy won at the state fair last week on display in his store.

Moore Ties Mark

Terry Moore, young outfielder, who went direct from a St. Louis trolley league to the Columbus Red Birds then to the Cardinals, is already a co-winner of a world record. Thursday against Boston the recruit knocked out five singles and a double to equal the accepted mark in a 9-inning game.

NEGRO PULVERIZER KNOWS FISTICUFFS, IS STUDYING BOOKS

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 6.—Far from prying eyes and inquisitive ears, Joe Louis today is doing "secret" training at St. Joe Bier's muscle building sanatorium. The Detroit destroyer is really in double training. In the ring and on the road, he is building body and muscle, perfecting his timing and improving his wind for his meeting with Max Baer on September 24.

In the seclusion of his private room, Louis is being given brain exercises, is being conditioned mentally. His tutor is his secretary, Russell Cowan, of Joe's own race, who took one year of law while he attended the Detroit Institute of Technology.

In his twenty-one years, Louis was denied the benefit of even an ordinary public school education because of the financial straits of his family. The elementary rudiments of grammar and mathematics, history and geography are strange to this sad-faced giant of the pulverizing fists. In the ring he is a learned and cultured student, in education, he is virtually a babe in the all important A. B. C's.

Each day, for about two hours before his gymnasium workouts, Cowan is closeted with Louis and tutors the blasting thunderbolt.

Joe appears sluggish in thought and speech but he has a fertile and probing mind. He has picked up in the lessons and instructions given him by Cowan in quick and apt manner.

CANFIELD RACE "FIXING" IS HIT

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—The Ohio Racing Commission's drive to clean up racing gained momentum today with the announcement that two jockeys and a trainer were indefinitely suspended for alleged "race fixing" at the Canfield track near Youngstown during the spring meet.

Frank Burley, Latonia, Ky., and Ralph Klein, Ravenna, are the suspended riders and Virgil Carmichael, of Grove City, the trainer. Jockey Troy Everett was temporarily suspended pending final investigation by the commission. The commission also denied the Youngstown Jockey Club's application to hold a fall meet.

—The Cardinals increased their lead over the Giants to three games when Clyde Castellan fell before Al Hollingsworth of Cincinnati.

Bagent a Regular?

Louie Bagent, who attended Circleville high school a couple of years, is touted as a regular halfback at Columbus South high this fall—Bagent is well-built and willing.

Good Grid Teams

A number of good semi-pro football teams are being planned in southcentral Ohio this season—Mike Helfrich is going to have a good team over in New Holland and from Lancaster comes news that a mighty good outfit is planned there—Coach Frank McDevitt of Lancaster St. Mary's is coaching the Fairfield team—Circleville has a lot of material for a grid squad but where, oh where could games be played with admission charged—There isn't an available field.

Getting Experience

Charlie Radcliff and Clarence Helvering had their first golf experience Thursday afternoon—They took part in the Kiwanis club tournament and had a big time—The sheriff swings from the unorthodox side while Blocky is human—Their scores? Well, that's something else—Anyway they were presented a box of tees each at the meeting in the evening.

REDS HAVE CHANCE TO TOP DIVISION

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6.—Fifth place in the final standings of the National league now looms as no idle dream for the Cincinnati Reds. Last spring the experts said the Reds would be lucky to get out of the cellar. But Charlie Dresen and his men paid little heed, going about their business day after day and winning as often as possible with a lineup of callow youngsters and a few veterans like Cuyler, Bottomley and Babe Herman.

Chick Hafey, a fine fielder and one of the best hitters in the league, was lost to the club at an early date because of ill health. Bottomley was out of the game for a protracted period. Kampouris, Myers and Riggs also had to ride the bench because of injuries. Despite these handicaps, the Reds now find themselves in a favorable position in the battle for fifth place.

The Giants wind up their series at Crosley Field Saturday, after which the Brooklyn Dodgers come to town Sunday, opening a four-game series with a double-header. The Reds swept the series the last time the Dodgers were in Cincinnati, and will be out to do it again this time if possible.

BIRDS IN SPLIT

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—Minneapolis maintained its four and one-half game lead today in the American Association after splitting a double-header with the Milwaukee while the second-place Indianapolis Indians were also dividing a twin bill with Columbus.

The Millers took the first contest, 3 to 2, and watched the Brewers run wild in the seven-inning nightcap, 11 to 3.

Columbus captured the opener against Indianapolis, 5 to 4, but the Hoosiers came back strong with a 9 to 7 win.

St. Paul took a double-header from Kansas City, winning 5 to 2 and 7 to 1.

Toledo dropped Louisville, 4 to 1, after a double loss to the Colonels Wednesday.

Dog "Talks," Saves Self

MARTINS FERRY, O. Locked in a mine office, a police dog knocked over a telephone, shook the receiver back with his paw and barked until he was released. The telephone operator at the Wheeling Steel Corp. switchboard saw a light flash from the company's coal mine office, and heard the dog bark.

Shortly thereafter word came from the mine office that a strange dog had been locked in by mistake. It was released.

14 TOURNEYS PLANNED FOR GOLF COURSE

Interest Remains High Late In Season; Many Features Planned by Hrobon.

Although the Pickaway Country club golf championships have been settled there is no waning of interest.

Emil Hrobon, club professional, today announced tournament plans clear into October and some of them are going to be honeys.

The program follows:
Sunday, Sept. 8—The Cryder Memorial masher trophy shall be played for. This is a handicap event open to all club members. Participants must play 18 holes anytime Sunday only. Rain or shine.

Tuesday, Sept. 10—The 6-hole twilight is a one-club handicap tournament. A certain club is selected and all players must use that club and that one only. A midiron or mashie are usually the best. All shots from the tee are played with the one club.

Wednesday, Sept. 11—Stag Day. Thursday, Sept. 12—A three blind selected holes straight play twilight tournament shall take place.

Load and Lifter

Sunday, Sept. 15—A mixed Load and Lifter tournament. This event played as a two-ball foursome. There is one good player and one poor player on each side. The 2-player team being chosen on the basis of handicaps. This tournament is run off as the regular two-man team event scoring with the same system as a 2-man event. Points and medal count.

Tuesday, Sept. 17—Cross country twilight. Instead of playing the holes in their regular order the course is re-mapped so that some real long distances will be covered from tee to green. In other words start on No. 1 tee and play for No. 7 green. The second hole would be from No. 8 tee to hole No. 9 for instance. Some holes are 1,000 yards long or more. Three holes will be played with no handicaps.

Wednesday, Sept. 18—Fall festival, all day rally. Some of the events of the day will be: two members in knickerbockers will play two members in long trousers; choice 4-man team of the day; choice 2-man team of the day; medalist high scorer; two blondes vs. two brunettes. Many other details will be announced later. For early

"Strip" Golfers Conclude Match as Husbands Sigh

SILVERTON, Ore., Sept. 6—Husbands of Silverton's teeming "strip" golfers sighed a heavy sigh of relief today.

The reason for the deep sighs was that the "strip" golf tournament reservations call the pro. Mr. Hrobon on that day will give 18 tips on how to improve your game. Wilder's string putting contest will also be held.

May Re-Play Four

Thursday, Sept. 19—Remorse golf twilight. The event is just the opposite from a No. 10. Every contestant has the privilege of asking his opponent to re-play any four shots, provided he calls the shot before the next one has been played. This is a handicap match.

Sunday, Sept. 22—Mixed Octopus event. This is a 2-men, 2-women event, four on a team. The eight players play only two balls and each member of each team is responsible for the use of only two clubs. In other words, the same player on all sides will play all driver and brassie shots, the same player on all sides must play all driving-iron and mid-iron shots, the same player must make all mashie and mashie-niblick shots and the fourth will use only niblick and putter. Each team selects a captain whose job it is to decide what club will be used. Team members are drawn from a hat.

Tuesday, Sept. 24—Obstacle twilight putting contest. The same as any putting contest except that obstacles are placed in the path of the ball.

Thursday, Sept. 26—The Wool and Boo handicap twilight. This is a real event in which contestants will give handicaps of so many woofs and boos instead of strokes. He can use any of his woofs and boos at any time and can yell as loudly as he likes at the most psychological moment.

Sunday, Sept. 29—Mixed rotation event. Every player's bag is equipped with the same clubs. Brassie, midiron, mashie, niblick and putter. These are the only ones allowed and they must be used in rotation. Some will be putting with a driver and others driving with a niblick.

Tuesday, Oct. 1—Twilight weekly jack-pot. Fewest trap shots event.

Thursday, Oct. 3—Twilight weekly jack-pot finish. No miss tee shot.

FRENCHMAN LOSES CHANNEL ATTEMPT

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 6—Paul Chotteau, French swimming star and former World war flyer, today failed in his fourth attempt to swim the choppy 38-mile channel between Santa Catalina island and the mainland.

After being in the water more than 24 hours, swept far off his original course by adverse tides and at one time threatened by a school of sharks, Chotteau was lifted from the water shortly before dusk yesterday, about three miles off Poino Firmin and 12 miles from his original destination.

Intending to swim from Catalina to Santa Monica, Chotteau, who entered the water at 4:35 p. m. Wednesday, yesterday changed his mind in midchannel and headed for Long Beach, but was unable to reach that goal.

After being taken to a hospital to recuperate Chotteau today announced he would make another attempt to negotiate the tricky channel in a few weeks.

Engaged to Joe Louis

Miss Marva Trotter

Reports of the engagement of Joe Louis, Detroit Negro heavyweight, and Miss Marva Trotter, above, young Chicago stenographer, were confirmed by the fighter at his training camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J., where he is preparing for a bout, Sept. 24, with Max Baer in New York. Louis said he and Miss Trotter would be married "after I dust off Max Baer."

BUCK MENTOR IS SILENT ON PREDICTIONS

Schmidt Sees Big Ten Teams Stronger; Titles Won In November, He Says.

By MAURY C. KOBLINTZ.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—Francis Schmidt, formerly known as the "Mad Genius of the Southwest" but more recently of Ohio State, was due back in town today after paying a brief visit here yesterday.

The Buckeye football coach, back from a tour of summer coaching clinics which took him from Texas to Illinois, stopped in the Capital City long enough to renew acquaintances before leaving for Cleveland where he was to attend a Buckeye alumni meeting.

Schmidt Amazed

Although his Scarlet warriors are being touted as the team most likely to commit mayhem with all opponents this fall, the laity Texan is a bit dismayed by the burst of enthusiasm for Ohio State grid followers who would have the Bucks winning the Big Ten, and any other kind of a championship, five weeks before the season actually gets under way.

Schmidt belongs to the old school of coaches. Far from being a pessimist, he still believes that championships are won in November as far as football is concerned.

"The fans are showing a marvelous attitude but I don't want them to become too over-confident," Schmidt said. He lost little time in pointing out that practically every Big Ten opponent Ohio faces will be much stronger than last fall.

"Indiana will be much stronger while Northwestern is in the grip of a 'New Deal' promulgated by the arrival of a new coach—Lynn Waldorf. The rest of the conference opponents, Chicago, Illinois, and Michigan, are vastly improved squads."

Face Tough Opener

Grid students here believe the Buckeyes will be in for a tough time in their opening game Oct. 5 against Kentucky. Although most fans have been taking the Kentuckians lightly, it is no great secret among the sports writers that Chet Wynne's team is pointing for the Ohio State game.

The Colomels finished the season strong last fall and handed Cincinnati a 27 to 0 reverse. With a much better team in prospect, the Lexington boys might cause the Bucks plenty of trouble.

Schmidt was expected back late today. His first move probably will be to call a meeting with his coaching staff and map out the pre-season activities.

Approximately 55 players have been invited to return for early fall practice which starts Tuesday. The pre-season squad will be composed of a dozen ends, eight tackles, 10 guards, five centers, nine halfbacks, seven quarterbacks, and four fullbacks.

Each of the entrants was entitled to nine pieces of clothing at the starting tee.

Mrs. Albert Adams and Mrs. Robert Coets tied for second place. They stripped four articles of feminine finery from their respective opponents.

Fortunately for the "strip" golfers none of them lost nine straight holes.

WLW TO BROADCAST COLUMBUS—Radio station WLW, Cincinnati, has obtained exclusive rights to broadcast Ohio State's football games this fall. A price of $15,000 was paid, it is reported.

LATE AFTER BIG PROGRAM THROUGH WPA

Projects to Total 300 Millions; Next Monday Deadline For Filing.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 6.—When the National headquarters of WPA clamps down the lid next Monday as the deadline for receiving projects, Ohio will have submitted a huge program contemplating the expenditures of $200,000,000 on projects in the state during the coming year.

A program of this dimension is necessary to provide jobs for the 340,000 employable persons now on the dole, Mr. Charles C. Stillman, federal relief administrator for Ohio, revealed. Although he was unable to say how many of the projects will receive final approval in Washington, he fully expects to present to Washington at least $300,000,000 worth of projects, valuable from a social viewpoint and acceptable to engineers. Yesterday was the deadline for receiving projects from the respective counties and departmental chiefs and clerks at the state relief headquarters will work each night this week and over Sunday to finish work on the applications. Figures and information as to the number of projects submitted by each county were not available as yet. However, Mr. Stillman said that District number 11, which includes Pickaway county, has submitted projects totaling $8,000,000, which will be sufficient to provide jobs for at least 12,566 needy workers.

Among the larger state-wide projects being sent to Washington is one for improvement of secondary "farm-to-market" roads. Total expenditure contemplated in this program is $78,322,045, of which $7,540,768 will be paid for by local communities. The project would provide jobs for 82,234 workers. The proposal expects to improve 10,737 miles of roadway at an average cost of $7,296 per mile.

Judge Adkins Sends Confessed
Knife Wielder to Jail;
Others Deny Charges.

Charles Elkins, 31, of Harrisburg, was sentenced to Ohio penitentiary Friday morning by Common Pleas Judge Joseph Adkins when he admitted cutting with intent to wound. The term for the offense is one to twenty years. Elkins was indicted by the grand jury Wednesday following the investigation of a knife slashing affray in Orient during the homecoming celebration Aug. 17. David Thacker, 31, of Orient, received slashes across the chest that required 17 stitches to close. Avery Harris, 26, of Ashville, was placed under probation for two years after admitting a charge of failure to provide for five minor children.

Allen Plovel, Tallon denied issuing a bad check and Harry Shull, Huntington, W. Va., denied an auto theft charge. Both asked the court to appoint attorneys. Their cases have been tentatively set for trial Sept. 10. Harry Riffle, county dog warden, indicted on a charge of unlawfully killing a dog, denied the charge and was released under $50 bond.

social and economic purpose," and claiming that the new corporation rates actually reduce taxes on 95 per cent of the corporations. "This administration," said the president "came into power pledged to a very considerable legislative program. It found the condition of the country such as to require drastic and far-reaching action. Duty and necessity required us to move on a broad front for more than two years. "It seems to the congress and to me better to achieve these objectives as expeditiously as possible in order that not only business but the public generally might know those modifications in the conditions and rules of economic enterprise which were involved in our program. "This basic program, however, has now reached substantial completion and the 'breathing spell' of which you speak is here—very decidedly so."

To Continue Support
In his letter, Howard said he expected to continue in support of Mr. Roosevelt's interpretation of "American liberalism" even though he disagreed as to some details and theories. He said he was writing the president because so many businessmen were "skeptics, critics and outright opponents" of the administration, more so than any other group. Mr. Roosevelt answered that he appreciated the tone and purpose of the letter and its spirit of fairness and readily agreed that the long session of congress may have produced "confusion" in the minds of many. But he added his belief that "doubts and misapprehensions" will disappear when the country has a chance to weigh what was accomplished.

DETROIT "RED"

Communist headquarters here was bombed and all habits of the place disappeared, police believe Emery, may have returned to New York.

In a "Michigan Organizer" pamphlet found in the bombed headquarters today was the following statement: "The May resolution of the central committee raised the slogan, 'Every Unit a Center of Mass Activity.' The resolution of the seventh world congress likewise emphasized the necessity for greater initiative of the party in mass struggles."

"The meat strike showed clearly the correctness of this policy. For example: A weak unit, which had carried on no mass activity in its sector and thus quickened the life and vitality of the unit."

"It went from house to house to obtain signatures, spoke to the people, held open air mass meetings, sold daily workers, involved the comrades in activity, trained comrades as speakers and thus became a vital unit."

"Another east side unit can record similar experiences. In fact by taking up mass struggles the life of the entire party is raised to a higher level. Mass struggle is a test of who are the real Bolshevik workers in the units and who are the chattering. The meat strike showed the masses will respond to our agitation if properly approached."

KINGSTON

DIEHLMAN WRITES
IN RAIL MAGAZINE

Charles Diehlman, S. Washington-st. graduate of the class of 1935 of Circleville high school, is given credit for being "a student who has his mind on things other than football games, secret clubs and class-room pranks" in the August issue of the Norfolk and Western Railway magazine.

Diehlman, grandson of Henry B. Gullum, deceased N. & W. engineer, writes a short article in the issue concerning American railroads.

Excerpts from the article follow: "American railroads, entering a new era of modern, swift transportation, are worthy subjects for observation. Greatly improved in the last few years, rail service is keeping pace with the ever-changing demands of shippers and the traveling public. Many rates have been lowered, freight and passenger movement has been speeded, new equipment has been purchased and the old is being renovated."

"These are expensive moves for the railroads. Yet they are being executed with the same optimistic faith as when pioneer railroads built lines across hundreds of miles of then unsettled territory, encountering innumerable difficulties along the way. The railroads' importance cannot be overestimated. In many localities they are the largest single taxpayer and are vitally important factors contributing to community welfare. Their payrolls are large. Being such an economic asset, our rail lines merit the support of the entire public, especially those who frequently patronize public carriers."

social and economic purpose," and claiming that the new corporation rates actually reduce taxes on 95 per cent of the corporations.

"This administration," said the president "came into power pledged to a very considerable legislative program. It found the condition of the country such as to require drastic and far-reaching action. Duty and necessity required us to move on a broad front for more than two years.

"It seems to the congress and to me better to achieve these objectives as expeditiously as possible in order that not only business but the public generally might know those modifications in the conditions and rules of economic enterprise which were involved in our program.

"This basic program, however, has now reached substantial completion and the 'breathing spell' of which you speak is here—very decidedly so."

To Continue Support

In his letter, Howard said he expected to continue in support of Mr. Roosevelt's interpretation of "American liberalism" even though he disagreed as to some details and theories. He said he was writing the president because so many businessmen were "skeptics, critics and outright opponents" of the administration, more so than any other group.

Mr. Roosevelt answered that he appreciated the tone and purpose of the letter and its spirit of fairness and readily agreed that the long session of congress may have produced "confusion" in the minds of many. But he added his belief that "doubts and misapprehensions" will disappear when the country has a chance to weigh what was accomplished.

Communist headquarters here was bombed and all habitues of the place disappeared, police believe Emery, may have returned to New York.

In a "Michigan Organizer" pamphlet found in the bombed headquarters today was the following statement:

"The May resolution of the central committee raised the slogan, 'Every Unit a Center of Mass Activity.' The resolution of the seventh world congress likewise emphasized the necessity for greater initiative of the party in mass struggles.

"The meat strike showed clearly the correctness of this policy. For example: A weak unit, which had carried on no mass activity in its sector began to work on the meat strike and thus quickened the life and vitality of the unit.

"It went from house to house to obtain signatures, spoke to the people, held open air mass meetings, sold daily workers, involved the comrades in activity, trained comrades as speakers and thus became a vital unit.

"Another east side unit can record similar experiences. In fact by taking up mass struggles the life of the entire party is raised to a higher level. Mass struggle is a test of who are the real Bolshevik workers in the units and who are the chatters. The meat strike showed the masses will respond to our agitation if properly approached."

DIEHLMAN WRITES IN RAIL MAGAZINE

Charles Diehlman, S. Washington-st., graduate of the class of 1935 of Circleville high school, is given credit for being "a student who has his mind on things other than football games, secret clubs and class-room pranks" in the August issue of the Norfolk and Western Railway magazine.

Diehlman, grandson of Henry B. Gullum, deceased N. & W. engineer, writes a short article in the issue concerning American railroads.

Excerpts from the article follow: "American railroads, entering a new era of modern, swift transportation, are worthy subjects for observation. Greatly improved in the last few years, rail service is keeping pace with the ever-changing demands of shippers and the traveling public. Many rates have been lowered, freight and passenger movement has been speeded, new equipment has been purchased and the old is being renovated.

"These are expensive moves for the railroads. Yet they are being executed with the same optimistic faith as when pioneer railroaders built lines across hundreds of miles of then unsettled territory, encountering innumerable difficulties along the way. The railroads' importance cannot be over-estimated. In many localities they are the largest single taxpayer and are vitally important factors contributing to community welfare. Their payrolls are large. Being such an economic asset, our entire public, especially those who frequently patronize public carriers."
